head of the eighteenth amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead act, which Albert E. Smith today shortly after arrived to contest the nomination
of his former political friend, Gov.
Franklin D. Roosevelt.His first statement on the convention scene, however, was related entirely to prohibition. It was a bit of the intensity of the party dispute that was stirring bitterness made no mention of Roosevelt or of the coming contest over the chairmanship of the convention which will bring the first test of the strength of the Roosevelt forces.Smith called the eighteenth amendment "unworkable" and declared it should be changed to permit the sale of beverages of a reasonable alcoholic content, thus eliminating the profits of the boot-legger and the tax on the bootlegger."When the Army Was Small," Smith said, "the bootlegger was surrounded by newspapermen at the Congress Hotel, Smith issued his statement:The eighteenth amendment would never have been put into the Constitution. It is unworkable.
I attacked it from the time it was first proposed and prophesied its failure and stated that it would be repealed by the greatest curse
that ever fell on an unsuspecting people.I thought it when it was unpopular to take that side of the issue in many parts of my own State and in many other states of the Union and when every weapon of narrow-minded intolerance was turned against me.I carried the banner when the army was small, the stragglers were and the opposition bitter.
I was then and I am now for the unconditional repeal of the eighteenth amendment.The Volstead act should at once be amended by a scientific and correct definition that will permit the sale of beverages of a reasonable alcoholic content. The people of the United States are entitled to this relief which would end the profits of the bootlegger
and the tax on the bootlegger.A Chat With Smith.
Chatting informally then, Smith declared the half of one per cent provision in the Volstead act was arbitrary and was put in the act by the Anti-Saloon League.He said that if a proposal for repeal were not submitted to the Resolutions Committee he would submit one himself.ANOTHER RACKET: STEALING FRAMES
OF GRAVE FLOWERSExchange of Shots in Chicago
Cemetery Discloses Petty Larceny Practice.Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, June 22.—The latest development in Chicago rackets is the stealing of the wire frames which support the intricate floral pieces
sent as the tribute of gangland.
This practice seems to account for the invasion of Mount Carmel Cemetery, west of the city limits, early today by men who exchanged shots
with the caretaker.The caretaker, Joseph Sobol, found a group of men at the grave of George (Red) Barker, gangster and
"public enemy," buried yesterday. He called to them, and half a dozen shots were fired, bullets
puncturing the tires of his automobile. Sobol fired his revolver at the men, who drove away in a truck.Gangs are not only among the florists' best customers, but some gangs are in the floral business, as proprietors or employees of shops. The frames of large floral pieces are of value to the florists,
who can use them for the next big funeral.Early editions of sensational Chicago papers put forward the idea
that an attempt was made to rob Barker's grave of "valuable papers or jewelry" which "might have been buried with him."BONES OF DUKE D'ANVILLE RECOVERED IN NOVA SCOTIA
Excavation Revives Story of Great Britain's Conquest of New France.By the Associated Press.
SYDNEY, N. S., June 22.—The story of Great Britain's conquest
of New France in the eighteenth century has been revived with the excavation of the bones of Duke d'Anville, High Admiral of France, from the debris where they had rested for nearly 200 years.After two years' work by the Nova Scotia Historic Sites and Monuments Board, the Duke's body was brought to the surface from its tomb beside the high altar of the Cathedral of St. Louis, Louisbourg, taken by the British in 1758, recaptured by the French a few years later and finally destroyed by British guns in 1758.Duke d'Anville led a French armada from France to retake her North American possessions just before the French and Indian wars.
They were pursued by storms and many of the ships were lost. The flagship, the Duc de Richelieu, was captured by the British and the Duke was buried in Louisbourg and his body was deeply imbedded in the bombardment of 1758. The Louisbourg of today, some 30 miles south of Sydney, is a ruin of the old fortress have been preserved.
The disposition of the Duke's body
has not been determined.DEPUTY KILLED, FIVE SHOT

Down in Louisiana Swamp.By the Associated Press.
MONROE, La., June 22.—Two bank robbers were hunted in the bayou swamps southwest of here
today after a running fight in which a deputy sheriff was killed, four possemen wounded and a young woman companion of the robbers
shot and captured.The men robbed the Franklin
State Bank and Trust Co. branch
at Baskin yesterday and escaped with more than $10,000 only to bog down in bayou mud. Officers caught up with the two as they continued their flight on foot.The deputy sheriff, the first to engage the robbers, was shot dead
by a bullet through the chest. A few moments later the woman companion of the robbers was dropped with a bullet in the hip. The men abandoned her and retreated into the swamp. Four of the posse received flesh wounds.ROBBERS TESTIFY

Likely Holdup.Mrs. Zoe Hodges, 36-year-old professional signer of criminal bail bonds, was confronted in court today by two confessed robbers who testified she lent pistols to them,
selected at least one likely place
for a burglary and shared in the loot of several robberies.Charged with receiving stolen property, Mrs. Hodges, who resides at 6427 Manchester avenue, is on trial before a jury in Judge Beck's division of Criminal Court.Witnesses against Mrs. Hodges were George Capelli, who has been sentenced to 10 years on a plea of guilty, and James Green, convicted robber, who recently testified in a trial for robbery at St. Charles that former Justice of the Peace Adolph Fiedler disposed of robbery loot
and provided a rendezvous for robbers at his Olive Street road recreation hall.Holdup of Candy Store.
Capelli and Green testified Mrs.
Hodges furnished them with weapons to use in the holdup of the Silver Rose Candy Co. in February, 1931, when cash was stolen from the store and two diamond rings
from customers.The rings were turned over to Mrs. Hodges, they testified, one to keep for herself and one to sell.
When they returned from this robbery, Capelli testified, he hid the weapon Mrs. Hodges had lent him in her kitchen. Later he bought it from her, he said, for $14.Green recalled that Mrs. Hodges suggested that he and Capelli hold up a South Side lumber company
she had patronized. They rode around and looked the place over.
Green said, but decided not to risk
a robbery."Bond Fees Out of Loot." Both witnesses said Mrs. Hodges often signed bail bonds for them,
for which they paid a fee. This fee, they admitted, was taken from the proceeds of robberies and hold-ups.Green and Capelli testified Mrs.
Hodges paid them $25 for a $500 bond she had signed for them. The fact she had failed to sign a bond
for them in one instance, causing him to remain in custody for a considerable time.Women Testify for Defense.
Attired in a flowered dress of summer material, Mrs. Hodges, a woman of medium height with bobbed black hair and dark eyes,
frequently conferred in whispers
with her counsel as he cross-examined State's witnesses.At the close of the State's case, three defense witnesses, women
who formerly had lived in a rooming house she conducted, testified that the fur coat and fur piece, taken in robberies by Green and Capelli, and found by police in a search of Mrs. Hodges' home, were the property of Green's wife, from whom he is now separated.The Greens formerly lived at Mrs. Hodges' rooming house.
Mrs. Hodges, if convicted, could be sentenced to serve two to five years in the penitentiary.WOMAN WITNESS

RICHMOND, Mo., June 22.—
Mrs. Azalea Ross was shot to death and her husband, Thomas Ross, was seriously wounded along a highway two miles northwest of Richmond this morning.Ross and Homer Morrison, a companion, who was less seriously wounded, told E. A. Farria, Ray County prosecutor, that their assailant was Lonni Affronti, Kansas City ex-convict.Ross and his wife had been subpoenaed recently to testify in Federal Court against Affronti in a narcotics case now pending. Af-fronti is at liberty on a $15,000 bond on an indictment for sale of narcotics.The Rosses and Morrison were returning to their homes in Excelsior Springs after breakfast at Richmond. They told officers they noticed that Affronti was following them in his automobile and to escape they entered a small clearing at the side of the road.Affronti followed them, Ross and Morrison related, jumped from his car and fired a charge from a shotgun which killed Mrs. Ross. She started to flee on foot and was shot down as he ran. The assailant returned his car and drove away.Joseph Brizendine, Excelsior Springs, reported he had seen Affronti's automobile on the road near Vibbard, a small community
north of the spot where Mrs. Ross was killed. Officers from Excelsior Springs set a guard on the roads
leading into town.After making a statement, Ross was taken to Kansas City hospital for treatment.Affronti was released on parole
from Missouri State penitentiary June 7, 1927, after serving a little more than five years of a 10-year sentence for the beating and robbing in June, 1920, of two elderly

GENEVA, June 22.—President
Hoover's proposal for drastic cuts
in the world's armaments brought definite refusal of acceptance from the French today and only lukewarm approval from the British.After the plan for reducing arms
by approximately one-third had been presented at a special meeting of the World Disarmament Conference, the French delegates asserted that it was absolutely unacceptable and sounded to them too much like an ultimatum.Sir John Simon, speaking for the British, said the plan would receive careful consideration, but that agreement was not to be achieved by any one-sided statement.As for Mr. Hoover's naval proposals, he said: "I doubt whether these proposals are adequate in some respects, and in others appropriate to the varying circumstances of the different naval powers.""As for adequacy, I say boldly for the delegation of the United Kingdom that we want more disarmament than that appears here.
We want submarines abolished."British Sentiment Divided.
Sir John told the conference the British delegation had not known before yesterday that Mr. Hoover's proposal would be presented today.
"The object of this conference,"
he said, "is to induce agreement.
Agreement is not to be attained by an unilateral statement, but by co-operation."There was a sharp difference in attitude noticeable in the reception of the plan by members of the British delegation, speaking privately. Prime Minister MacDonald spoke with restrained cordiality,
but Sir John's comments were triflingly polite rather than friendly.
The difference merely emphasized
a division of sentiment on foreign policy which has existed for some time in the British Cabinet.French Antagonism.
The French antagonism was revealed even before Gibson presented the President's message. Premier Herriot and several of his colleagues saw an advance copy and protested immediately that the French could not accept it. Joseph Paul-Boncour, the Minister for War, after conferring with Herriot
at Lausanne, said: "This is absolutely unacceptable. France again will raise the question of security."The reductions and abolitions proposed by the President, the French asserted, would merely increase the French insecurity. As a matter of fact, they said, Germany would not be reduced equally with France in fighting strength, for she does not possess many of the arms which would be affected.In addition to practical objections, the French also protested to be offended at the manner in which the proposal was introduced. They criticized it as smacking too much of the spirit of an ultimatum.Text of President's Announcement of His Disarmament Policy

WASHINGTON, June 22.

THE President's statement advocating a reduction of one-third of the world's armaments follows in full:The delegations at the world conference on disarmament at Geneva are engaged in discussions as to methods by which a more comprehensive effort can be made toward disarmament.The following is the substance of instructions which have been given by the President to the American delegation for guidance in the discussions which are now occupying them:The time has come when we should cut through the brush and adopt some broad and definite method of reducing the overwhelming burden of armament which now lies upon the tollers of the world. This would be the most important world step that could be taken to expedite economic recovery.
We must make headway against the mutual fear and friction arising out of war armament which kill human confidence throughout the world. We can still remain practical in maintaining an adequate self-defense among all nations; we can add to the assurances of peace and yet
save the people of the world
from 10 to 15 billions of wasted dollars during the next 10 years.Principles to Be Guide.
I propose that the following principles should be our guide:1. The Kellogg-Briand pact, to which we are all signatories,
can only mean that the nations
of the world have agreed that they will use their arms solely for defense.2. This reduction should be carried out not only by broad general cuts in armaments but
by increasing the comparative power
of defense through decreases in the power of the attack.3. The armaments of the world have grown up in general
mutual relation to each other.
And, speaking generally, such relative should be preserved in making reductions.Fourth, The reductions must be real and positive. They must effect economic relief.
Fifth, There are three problems to deal with—land forces, air forces and naval forces. They are all interconnected. No part of the proposals which I make can be disassociated one from the other.Based on these principles, I propose that the arms of the world should be reduced by nearly one-third.Reduction of Land Forces.
Land forces. In order to reduce the offensive character of all land forces as distinguished from their defensive character,
I propose the adoption of the presentation already made at the Geneva Conference for the abolition of all tanks, all chemical warfare and all large mobile guns. This would not prevent the establishment or increase of fixed fortifications of any character for the defense of frontiers and sea-coasts. It would give an increased relative strength to such defense as compared with the attack.The proposals furthermore that there should be a reduction of one-third in strength of all land armies over and above
the so-called police component.
The land armaments of many nations have been considered for this purpose as to have two functions. One is the maintenance of internal
order in connection with the regular peace forces of the country. The strength required for this purpose has been called the "police component." While it is not suggested that these different components should be separated, it is necessary to consider this contention as to functions in proposing a practical plan of reduction in landforces. Under the Treaty of Versailles and the other peace
treaties, the armies of Germany, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria were reduced to a size deemed appropriate for
the maintenance of internal
order, Germany being assigned 100,000 troops for a population of approximately 65,000,000 people. I propose that we should accept for all nations a basic police component of soldiers proportionate to the average which was thus allowed Germany and these other states. This formula, with necessary corrections for Powers having colonial possessions, should be sufficient to provide for the maintenance of internal order by the nations of the world. Having analyzed
these two components in this fashion, I propose, as stated above, that there should be a reduction of one-third in the strength of all land armies
over and above the police component.Would End Bombing.
Air forces. All bombing planes to be abolished. This will do away with the military possession of types of planes capable of attacks upon civil populations and should be coupled with the total prohibition of all bombardment from the air.Naval forces. I propose that the treaty number and tonnage of battleships shall be reduced by one-third; that the treaty tonnage of aircraft carriers, cruisers and destroyers shall be reduced by one-fourth;
that the treaty tonnage of submarines shall be reduced by one-third, and that no nation
shall retain a submarine tonnage greater than 35,000.The relative strength of naval armaments in battleships and aircraft carriers, as between the five leading naval Powers, was fixed by the treaty of Washington. The relative strength in cruisers, destroyers and submarines was fixed, as between the United States, Great Britain and Japan by the Treaty of London. For the purposes of this proposal, it is suggested that the French and Italian strength in cruisers and destroyers be calculated as though they had joined in the Treaty of London on a basis of approximating the so-called accord of March 1, 1931. There are various technical considerations connected with these naval discussions which will be presented by the delegation of Washington. The effect of this plan would be to effect an enormous saving in cost of new construction and replacements of naval vessels. It would also have large amounts in the operating expense in all nations of land, sea and air forces. It would greatly reduce offensive strength compared to defense strength in all nations.These proposals are simple and direct. They call upon all nations to contribute something. The contribution here proposed will be relatively mutual. I know of nothing that would give more hope for humanity today than the acceptance of such a program with such minor changes as might be necessary. It is folly for the world to go on breaking its back over military expenditures and the United States is willing to take its share of responsibility by making definite proposals that will relieve the world."WOULD CUT

WASHINGTON, June 22.—
President Hoover, in a sudden and dramatic announcement at the White House today, proposed principles for reducing the arms of the entire world by nearly one-third.With Secretary Stimson at his side, the President read to a small group of newspaper men hurriedly assembled at the executive mansion a statement saying that "the time has come when we should cut through the brush," and adopt arms reductions calculated to save the Powers between $10,000,000, 000 and $15,000,000,000 during the next ten years.Five Principles Laid Down.
Five broad principles were laid down by the chief executive and upon this foundation he proposed among other things:Abolition of all tanks, chemical warfare and large mobile guns.Reduction of one-third in the strength of all land armies over and above "the so-called police component."The abolition of all bombing planes, and the "total prohibition of all bombardment from the air."Reduction in the treaty number and tonnage of all battleships by one-third.Reduction in the treaty tonnage of aircraft carriers, cruisers and destroyers by one-fourth and of submarines by one-third with no nation having more than 35,000 tons of submarines.Simultaneously with the President's pronouncement today it was learned in authoritative quarters
that the proposals suggested already had been approved fully by Secretaries Stimson, Hurley and Adams, by the chief of staff of the army and the chief of naval operations, and by the entire American delegation at Geneva.Mr. Hoover's broad and drastic plan was placed before the Geneva conference today, almost simultaneously with his reading of it to a group of hardly a dozen newspaper correspondents assembled in his private office.Bases for Reduction.
The principles enunciated by the chief executive for slicing the world's armaments by 15 per cent were read by him as follows:1. The Kellogg-Briand pact, to which we are all signatories, can only mean that the nations of the world have agreed that they will use their arms solely for defense.2. This reduction should be carried out not only by broad general cuts in armaments, but by increasing the comparative power of defense through decreases in the power of the attack.3. The armaments of the world have grown up in general mutual relation to each other. And, speaking generally, such relative should be preserved in making reductions.

INSPECTION FLEET ON SECOND LEG OF MISSOURI CRUISE

Secretary of War Hurley Leaves St. Charles at Dawn on River Trip to Kansas City.

EFFECT OF HIGH WATER STUDIED

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ON BOARD THE GENERAL ASHBURN, June 22.—The General Ashburn and the Mark Twain left St. Charles at dawn today on the second leg of a Missouri River cruise to Kansas City which, Secretary of War Hurley told St. Louis at yesterday's Chamber of Commerce luncheon, signals the fulfillment of a 1925 campaign pledge of President Hoover.

The cruise is, officially, an inspection by Secretary Hurley and high army officers in charge of channel improvement and barge operations, to determine if the channel is in fact ready for a return of the river traffic, which deserted the Missouri almost completely 50 years ago.

This June has brought the first considerable high water on the Missouri in three years, and the two steamers cruised full speed ahead along a deep and well-marked channel, with army engineers' boats preceding them by a few miles. Col. George Spaulding, division engineer in charge of channel improvement of the Mississippi and its tributaries above the Ohio, and other engineers making the inspection, are eager to see the effect of the high water, for they have said for more than a year that, although the engineering works were nearly complete, high water alone could complete the job of scouring out the channel.

Work started in 1910. In connection with the announced fulfillment of President Hoover's pledge, it may be recalled that he is again the Republican nominee for President. It may be mentioned, also, that this six-foot project between Kansas City and St. Louis has been under way since 1910.

But it must be conceded that Secretary Hurley and President Hoover have most if not all the figures on their side. In 1928 something over 117,000,000 had been lost in 18 years on this troublesome stretch of river, and the channel was estimated—and probably with some optimism—55 per cent complete. The work and annual expenditures for the four years since then have been more than doubled, so that, as Mr. Hoover nears the end of his term, he can point with pride to a $46,000,000 channel ready for use between the two largest cities of Missouri.

Tonight the inspection party is due at Hermann, tomorrow night at Jefferson City, Friday night at Booneville, Saturday night at Miami, Sunday at Waverly and Lexington, Monday night at Napoleon, and Tuesday at Kansas City, where an elaborate reception is to conclude with a Chamber of Commerce dinner at the Muehlbach Hotel.

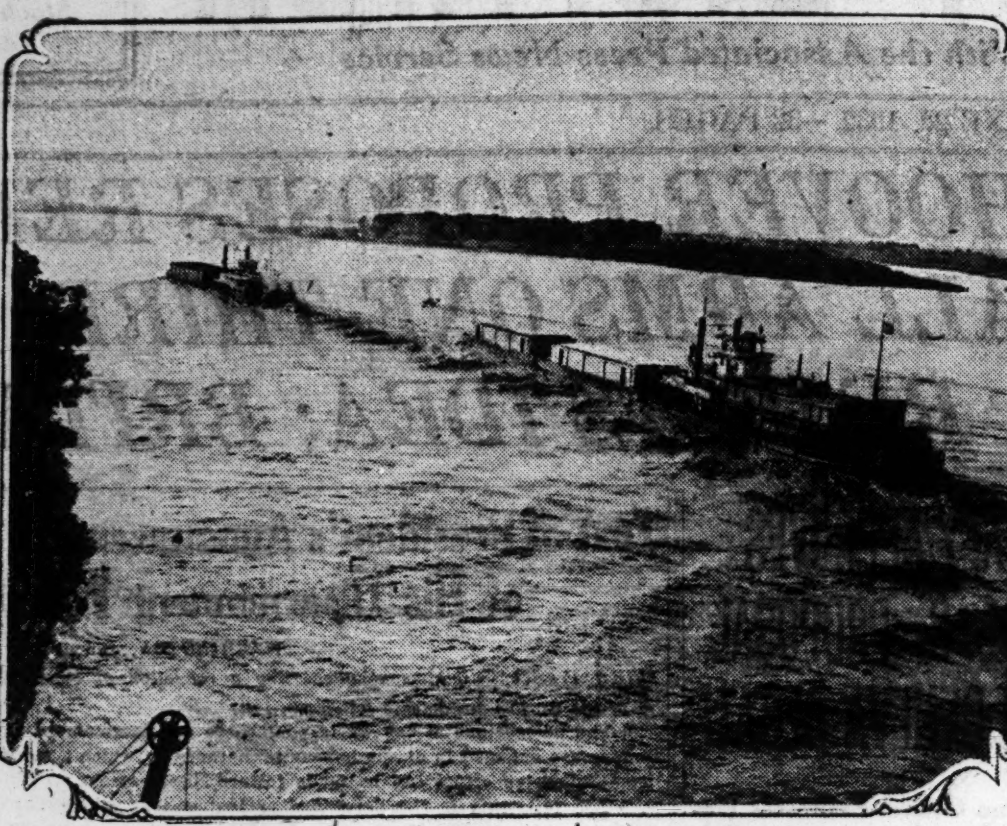

Celebrations have been planned at nearly every town along the river, for they have looked long for a revival of traffic on this great and treacherous stream. Gov. Caulfield is expected to spend a day on board one of the boats, and Major-General Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, is to join the party, which already includes Secretary Hurley, Col. Spaulding and Major-General T. Q. Ashburn, head of the Inland Waterways Corporation, which operates the Federal barge lines.

Seven airplanes of the thirty-fifth Division, Missouri National Guard, escorted the guests to Lewis Bridge yesterday to board the steamers, and an army blimp from Scott Field floated overhead, silver against an opalescent sunset, as the boats neared St. Charles. The air-minded Secretary of War had flown to Curtis-Stenberg airport from Cincinnati in two hours and 25 minutes, arriving an hour before time for the luncheon.

"Under the guiding hand of Herbert Hoover," he said, "waterways development became a national rather than a local project." He outlined the Hoover plan of a connected system of waterways, centering on an improved Mississippi, with tributary improvement work; systematically upward from this main stem, "so that we can develop navigation as we go."

"Today under that plan," said

Missouri River Inspection Tour Begins

THE Missouri River inspection fleet is shown moving up the river toward St. Charles. Secretary of War Hurley and other officials are aboard the Steamer Mark Twain, which is accompanied by the General Ashburn and three barges.

Hurley, "we have improved the river to Kansas City."

Opposes Garner Bill.

Remarking that President Hoover had adopted a plan of accelerating public works to a degree calling for three times the previous annual expenditure, he deprecated the proposal of the Garner bill to "draw $2,500,000 out of an already depleted treasury."

"It has required every ounce of strength and intelligence Congress has to balance the budget, and they tell us every day they don't yet know if it is balanced," he commented. "The question is whether we should continue this development on a basis of sound economic and sound engineering, or take billions out of the Treasury to pour into a situation where there is no possibility of immediate return—and again unbalance the budget. I was called before a committee and asked if I could spend $539,000,000 in river improvement next year. I had the Engineer Corps figure it out, and they told me that, if they had all the money they could use, they could add to the 30,000 men they now employ just 34,000 more."

"Our pessimists say there are 8,000,000 persons out of work in this country. To employ 34,000 we would again unbalance the budget and throw this country into financial confusion—and the effect on unemployment would not be a drop in the bucket."

CHICAGO CIVIC OPERA COMPANY WON'T PERFORM NEXT SEASON

Accepts Insull's Resignation; Secretary Says Suspension Is Only Temporary.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 22.—Chicago will hear no opera next winter, directors of the Chicago Civic Opera Company decided today. They accepted the resignation of Samuel Insull as president, but took no action toward choosing a successor to the man who always guaranteed to cover deficits. The directors' meeting was hasty and this statement had been prepared beforehand.

"The trustees have definitely, but reluctantly, come to the conclusion that, in view of the economic conditions now prevailing and the impossibility of determining what the future may bring, they would not be warranted in proceeding with arrangements for a season of opera during the coming winter."

Stanley Field, secretary-treasurer, in whose office the meeting was held, said "this is only a temporary suspension and does not mean opera has been abandoned in Chicago."

CADIZ, O., June 22.—Belated tribute to Major-General George A. Custer, whose command was wiped out by Indians at the battle of Little Big Horn in Montana, was paid today, when a memorial was unveiled at New Rumley, near here, Custer's birthplace.

The memorial was made possible by a $15,000 appropriation of the Ohio General Assembly four years ago. It not only commemorates Custer's achievements in the Indian war, but also his service in the Union army during the Civil War. Tribute to the Indian fighter was paid by Col. Ralph Cole of Pindley, who dedicated the monument; Gov. George White of Ohio; Major-General Hugh A. Drum, commander of the Fifth Corps area; Adjutant-General Frank D. Henderson of Ohio; and Commander Paul Herbert of the American Legion of Ohio.

Gen. Custer and his command of five troops of the Seventh Cavalry were slain in the Little Big Horn just 55 years ago next Saturday. Almost 66 years ago to the hour Custer waved his final farewell to Gen. Terry on June 22, 1876.

Lawyer for 60 Years, Dies at 91. MARVILLE, Mo., June 22.—Ira Kalderman, 91 years old, former Probate Judge and a Civil War veteran, died this morning. He was the first secretary of the Standard Poland China Record Association. He came here in 1864 and practiced law 60 years, during which time he was City Attorney for three terms.

President Proposes Cut of Armaments by One-Third

ing generally, such relatively should be preserved in making reductions. "4. The reductions must be real and positive. They must first effect economic relief."

"5. There are three problems to deal with—land forces, air forces and naval forces. They are all interconnected. No other part of the proposals which I make can be dissociated one from the other."

The President paused significantly after enunciating this part of his statement, and then added: "Based on these principles, I propose that the arms of the world should be reduced by nearly one-third."

It was learned from highly authoritative sources in the capital today that Mr. Hoover has no idea that the United States should act alone upon the principles he proposed, but would do so only if the other major Powers should accept them.

Effect on America.

As analyzed here today, the President's proposals would have less effect upon the American armaments than upon the European Powers. Figures are available here to show that the American army has been mobilized below the police component given Germany and the other states following the war, which Mr. Hoover would use as a yardstick for measuring the size of all armies.

America's bombing planes, tanks and chemical warfare, of course, would fall under the proposed ban. Other figures available here show that the American navy has not been built up to treaty strength, and that the effect of the proposals upon this country would be to bring the treaty limits down to about the ratio now enjoyed by the American navy.

Mr. Hoover feels that since some time would be required for the adoption of his proposals, there would be no immediate reduction of personnel and thus no addition to the unemployment problem.

Several of the chief executive's aides and cabinet officers have compiled figures to show that the United States could save approximately $2,000,000,000 in expenditures over the next 10 years.

Mr. Hoover feels personally that the United States, under the proposed slashes in arms, would be more secure in defense than it is today, since the power of attack of all nations would be reduced.

It was announced with great emphasis in the capital today that although President Hoover's proposals for armament reduction have been discussed at Geneva for some time, they have not been mentioned in connection with war debt reductions.

It was stated on the highest authority that no such suggestions have been made by the United States in order to secure armaments. Mr. Hoover is known to feel personally that such a proposal—war debt reduction contingent upon armament reduction—would be offensive to the dignity of European nations.

Extension of Nine-Point Plan. President Hoover's suggestion today goes further than the original American nine-point program submitted at Geneva on Feb. 9 by Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, acting head of the American delegation.

The Hoover plan embraces additional cuts in naval armaments in the battleship and cruiser classes and is a radical modification of the program submitted by Gibson. The latter advocated the abolition of submarines, while the Hoover proposal would permit the retention of a small submarine tonnage, probably a concession to France.

Gibson particularly stressed the necessity for the reduction of offensive arms; that is, great mobile guns and tanks which are suitable for attack upon a foreign power rather than defense. This form of armament has been particularly discussed by the American delegates at Geneva as the cause of the fear of attack from outside which has prevented European nations from agreeing to any reduction.

Gibson and his associates have proposed limitations in various categories in a very general way.

GIRLS GARBED AS BOYS SAID TO HAVE INVADIED MT. ATHOS

ATHENS, June 22.—The Greek Patriarch of Constantinople was reported here to have pronounced "public anathema" on Alice Diplarakou, Greek girl, for daring to invade the monastery on Mount Athos, where neither female is allowed, not even a cow, goat, dog or chicken.

Miss Diplarakou, who toured the United States last year as "Miss Europe of 1930," disguised herself as a boy, and, accompanied by a French girl in a sailor's costume, scaled the holy mountain and entered the monastery. Details are lacking and her present whereabouts are not definitely known.

Algonia Steel Co. Insolvent. TORONTO, June 22.—The Algonia Steel Co. was adjudged insolvent today and the Chartered Trust & Executor Co. was named liquidator to close the company's affairs.

Fugitive Warrant Dismissed. CHICAGO, June 22.—A fugitive warrant charging William Howell Blackburn, former Purdue University student, with the attempted murder of an Indiana road commissioner, was dismissed in Oak Park yesterday. Complainants had failed to appear at 15 consecutive hearings. Extradition proceedings, however, are still pending before Gov. Emmerson at Springfield.

Blackburn is accused of shooting Russell Gardner near Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 28, after Gardner had given him a ride in his auto.

HOPE OF ACCORD ON MORATORIUM ON REPARATIONS

French Proposal for One, Two or Three-Year Suspension Offered at Lausanne.

By the Associated Press. LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 22.—The prospect of a Franco-British accord on the question of reparations appeared last night when Premier Herriot of France informed Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain that France was ready to adopt a new policy, including the virtual scrapping of the Young plan.

Meanwhile, it was learned on high authority, Baron von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, submitted to Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain a memorandum proposing a five-year consultative economic pact.

It is understood that Germany is unable to pay further reparations, and suggests that all the countries represented at this conference agree for five years to take no steps likely to harm the trade of other nations and consulting all the signatories of the pact.

The new French plan has three main points. It calls for: 1. Suspension of German reparations payments for one, two or more years.

2. Continuation of Germany's deliveries in kind.

3. A suggestion that, at the end of the suspension period, France would fix, spread among the United States and countries receiving reparations payments.

The new proposal had developed so far that the French and Belgian representatives even began a discussion of how much this final sum ought to be.

The British delegation indicated the proposals met with some degree of favor with them and indicated that the new French policy might result in a Franco-British accord.

Herriot's suggestions, as communicated to MacDonald, also called for the reconstruction of Germany and Central Europe, with restoration of credits.

If reparations payments were canceled without the cancellation of the debts due the United States, Hoover, French spokesman said, France would be economically ruined.

Gibson and his associates have proposed limitations in various categories in a very general way.

Urges Hoover to Confer With Powers on Economic Problems. NEW YORK, June 22.—George W. Wickersham, president of the League of Nations Association, announced the association will urge Congress to request President Hoover to confer with governments represented at Lausanne about a "permanent solution" for prevalent economic distress. Details are lacking and the association's board of directors were sent to the President, Secretary of State and members of Congress.

on, "we want to point out that the American plan makes no provision for reducing their present monstrous size."

"Under the London treaty no new capital ships are to be built until 1937 at the earliest. What is going to happen then?"

"It is not possible, whenever a new capital ship is built, to agree that, instead of building new ships of 25,000 tons with 16-inch guns, a much lower limit both in tonnage and gun caliber shall be established."

He welcomed the breadth of view which the Hoover statement took on the disarmament problem and promised that Great Britain would give prompt and sympathetic attention to that part of it dealing with land forces.

Previously he had said: "We are convinced that any reasonable step whereby the vast total of men under arms throughout the world can be reduced in any way which does not diminish the security of any country should be welcomed."

"Bound Up With Security." Paul-Boncour, in answering Mr. Hoover's plan for mass reductions, said that the security of any country should be guaranteed before arms are cut, said:

"Reduction of armaments is inseparably bound up with security. Mr. Hoover's plan for mass reductions will be welcomed in France, if it is combined with international provisions for security. We are willing to study the Hoover proposals, if the Americans will study the requirements of French security."

He referred to Mr. Hoover's invocation to the Kellogg Pact. "And who," he demanded, "is to guarantee that weapons shall be used only for purposes of defense?"

Russia Approves Plan. Maxim Litvinoff, for Russia, approved the American plan although he said it did not go so far as his Government would wish.

"We favor all kinds of disarmament," he said, "we will support total disarmament, partial disarmament, moral disarmament, budgetary disarmament—any genuine reduction of arms. I hope this plan will be discussed fully and early so that the conference can really begin."

The German representative, Count Rudolf Nafelitz, said the Hoover proposals would give the conference new impetus.

Dino Grandi, on behalf of Premier Mussolini of Italy, gave his complete and unconditional acceptance of the Hoover program.

"Italy accepts entirely and in all its parts the disarmament plan submitted today by the American delegation," he said.

The Japanese representative said his country was ready to co-operate in considering the American proposals.

Arthur Henderson, chairman of the conference, shut off the discussion by announcing that Mr. Hoover's proposals would be discussed at the private sessions which would be reached.

will be in progress for some time. Another general meeting will be called when needed.

U. S. Attitude on Civil Aviation; French Proposals.

At a meeting of the Air Commission this morning, Allen W. Dulles, the American member, said that, if European Governments decide to internationalize commercial air forces, the United States will consider sympathetically any method of national supervision of American civil aviation to prevent its becoming a military menace to other countries.

America would do this, he said, in the interest of disarmament and world security, although the United States considers the plan to internationalize civil air forces, as primarily a European concern.

French Air Proposals. Meanwhile France presented a set of sweeping proposals in regard to civil and military aviation which included:

1. Prohibition of chemical, incendiary and bacteriological warfare from the air.

2. Prohibition of aerial bombardment, except over the field of battle, over air bases and over long range artillery emplacements.

3. Placing a limit on the tonnage per unit for military airplanes, and fixing of a limit on the number of machines over the stipulated tonnage deemed essential for defensive purposes, machines in the latter classification to be placed at the disposal of the League of Nations.

4. Continental nationalization of commercial and transport aviation.

5. Fixing of similar bases of maximum tonnage per unit for non-internationalized civil airplanes, corresponding to the measures concerning the private manufacture of and trade in arms.

Paris Papers Call Hoover's Proposal an Ultimatum.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, June 22.—President Hoover's new arms proposal was published too late for extensive comment in this afternoon's newspapers, but the Nationalist press was highly critical of the activities at Geneva and Lausanne in the last few days.

The Journal des Debats referred to the midnight conference at Morges between United States Ambassador Gibson and Premier Herriot as an American ultimatum. It declared that the United States was using the disarmament plea to exert pressure on France. Germany, the newspaper charged, is increasing its armament in violation of treaty obligations, while France is being asked to disarm.

The Lausanne correspondent of L'Information described President Hoover's message as the "Hoover encyclical" and said it was not an ultimatum to Europe, but a campaign message to the American public.

The Journal said the Hoover program would not change the French thesis of security before disarmament. Le Temps expressed the hope that the amicable adjustment would be reached.

ROOSEVELT CALLS ON WALKER TO ANSWER CHARGES

Requests New York Mayor Also to Make Reply to Citizens' Supplemental Complaints.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 22.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt called on Mayor Walker of New York City today to reply to the charges brought against him by Samuel Seabury, counsel of the Hofstadter Legislative Committee investigating municipal affairs of New York City.

At the same time Roosevelt asked Walker to include in his reply answers to supplemental charges forwarded by civic organizations of greater New York, demanding the removal of Mayor Walker, based on testimony before the Legislative Committee.

Roosevelt wrote to Walker as follows: "I am sending you herewith certain charges and an analysis filed by me containing allegations relating to your conduct as Mayor of the city of New York."

"The documents I enclose are as follows: "A letter and an analysis filed by Honorable Samuel Seabury. "A copy of a petition filed by William J. Schellkopf, chairman, on behalf of the New York Committee of One Thousand.

"Copy of James E. Finnegan and petition from him and others. "I have only one copy of these eight volumes of testimony sent to me by Judge Seabury. I am requesting him to send another copy for your convenience.

"Will you please let me have a reply to these charges?" Finnegan represents the New Deal party of Brooklyn.

TRYING POLITICIAN
AND THREE OTHERS
AS DRY PLOTTERS

S. Court Hears Case Against Joseph Feigen-butz and His Alleged Associates.

AGENT TELLS ABOUT GUN PLAY IN RAID

Says He Was Threatened With Pistol at Farm and Two Men Made Getaway
in Automobile.

Trial of Joseph Feigenbutz and three others charged with conspir-
ing to violate the prohibition act
continued today before a jury in Federal Judge Farris court, with the defendants attempting to establish a cleaning and dyeing business at 2305 South Broadway, named in the indictment with his brother, Henry, Addis Mc-Carthy and Arthur Ramsey. The trial is expected to require several days.

Witnesses in their testimony
placed both of the Feigenbutz brothers and Addis McCarthy on the morning of the raid, near Moselle,
where a large still was raided last night. The testimony of Earl Earl told of exchanging shots with Joe Feigenbutz on the day of the raid.

Francis Dugale, prohibition agent
who was with Olmstead and participated in the shooting, testified he had directed his shots at the left rear tire of an automobile in which Feigenbutz and McCarthy were. As the car was driven away, Dugale said, he noticed the left rear tire was flat.

But lost in the chase.
Feigenbutz's straw hat fell off
during the chase, Dugale related,
and he identified it as introduced in evidence as the one Feigenbutz had lost. Otto Schultz, who operates a wholesale cleaning and dyeing plant at 6410 Michigan avenue, identified the hat as one which had been sent to his establishment from the cleaning and dyeing shop of Feigenbutz.

"I had gone to the woods in the
back of the still house with Agent
Dugale to cut off escape in that direction," Olmstead testified. "As
we were standing there Joe Feigen-
butz and McCarthy approached us.
They were about 100 feet
away. I called to them and told them we were prohibition agents.
"Feigenbutz reached under his
coat and drew out a pistol from
his belt. He pointed it at us and said 'Stay where you are or you'll get hurt.'
"They ran back through the
woods and jumped into a Buick
coupe. Just before Feigenbutz got into the car he fired one shot at
us but missed. He leveled the pistol again several times, but it was not fired. I shot back, aiming
at the tires of the automobile."
Olmstead was followed on the
chase stand by Jack Fisher, of
New Orleans, which is in Franklin County, 46 miles west of St. Louis, and
about a mile and a half from the
farm on which the still was found.
Fisher told of observing a Buick
coupe, occupied by two men,
which was driven through the
woods with one flat tire in the rear.
He was unable to identify the men.

Identifies Truck Drivers.
Olmstead had testified that he
and other agents had the farm
under surveillance for several months before the raid. Referring
to notes, he mentioned numerous
persons on which trucks and automobiles entered or left the Hell-
ing farm. Henry Feigenbutz and McCarthy, he said, were among
the truck drivers. Joe Feigenbutz,
he added, had been seen in an automobile in the vicinity.

A guard was maintained at the
entrance to the farm, Olmstead
testified, and those who passed
through the gate had to stop to identify themselves. Rags were tied on trees and fences along
the road, the prohibition agent
said, apparently for use as signals.

Deputy Prohibition Administrator James Dillon, who led the raid
on the Helling farm, and Prohibition Agent Mulderig preceded Olm-
stead on the witness stand. Each
of the five stills raided, they testified, were constructed similarly to
that found on the Helling farm,
and in each case the metal vats
were made of wooden staves, held
together by steel bands.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS; DIES

Joe Shillie, 45 years old, of 670
Oakland avenue, Webster Groves, died at City Hospital today soon after he was found unconscious in the home of Mrs. Florence Mc-Farland, 2114 North Market street, with an empty bottle, which apparently had contained poison,
at his side.

Mrs. McFarland told police he had been stopping at her home for several days recently and had appeared to be in good spirits today.
He was employed as a repair man
by the Laclede Power & Light Co. at his home, a woman who identified herself as his wife, said she had not seen him since Saturday.

Making Friends With Rattlers

THEODORE TAUSCH

Snake collector and lecturer, holding five rattlers which he has caught and which he handles with impunity. The snakes make no effort to bite him.

Theodore Tausch Says Snake
Isn't Afraid or Nervous
If Man Isn't.

"It's all a matter of vibrations," said Theodore Tausch, reaching into a sack of rattlesnakes at the reptile house of the Zoo yesterday.
He lifted out a prairie rattler,
then a red diamond-back, a bleached rattlesnake and two more prairie rattlers. "How do you want I should hold them?" he inquired of a photographer, while the reptiles twisted and wriggled about in his hand. "Out, like so, or up close like so?"

"Either way," said the photographer. "They're your snakes, not mine. I was going to photograph from a distance of six feet, but you know, I think this would be a better eight-foot shot."

"I had gone to the woods in the
back of the still house with Agent
direction," Olmstead testified. "As
we were standing there Joe Feigen-
butz and McCarthy approached us.
They were about 100 feet
away. I called to them and told
them we were prohibition agents.
"Feigenbutz reached under his
coat and drew out a pistol from
his belt. He pointed it at us and
said 'Stay where you are or you'll
get hurt.'
"They ran back through the
woods and jumped into a Buick
coupe. Just before Feigenbutz got
into the car he fired one shot at
us but missed. He leveled the
pistol again several times, but it
at the tires of the automobile."
Olmstead was followed on the
chase stand by Jack Fisher, of
New Orleans, which is in Franklin County, 46 miles west of St. Louis, and
about a mile and a half from the
farm on which the still was found.
Fisher told of observing a Buick
coupe, occupied by two men,
which was driven through the
woods with one flat tire in the rear.
He was unable to identify the men.

Identifies Truck Drivers.
Olmstead had testified that he
under surveillance for several
to notes, he mentioned numerous
persons on which trucks and automobiles entered or left the Hell-
ing farm. Henry Feigenbutz and McCarthy, he said, were among
the truck drivers. Joe Feigenbutz,
he added, had been seen in an automobile in the vicinity.

A guard was maintained at the
entrance to the farm, Olmstead
testified, and those who passed
through the gate had to stop to identify themselves. Rags were
tied on trees and fences along
the road, the prohibition agent
said, apparently for use as signals.

Deputy Prohibition Administra-
tor James Dillon, who led the raid
on the Helling farm, and Prohibition Agent Mulderig preceded Olm-
stead on the witness stand. Each
of the five stills raided, they testified, were constructed similarly to
and in each case the metal vats
were made of wooden staves, held
together by steel bands.

Vernie Lacy, attorney for the defendants, did not cross-examine any of the prohibition agents who testified for the government.

WOODED HER ARDENTLY

Court Cleared as She Tells of Affair Before He Wed
Aimee McPherson.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, June 22.—Myrtie Jean St. Pierre, nurse, who has duplicated David Hutton, husband of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton as an ardent, whisky-drinking lover, was cross-examined today on the story she told yesterday on the witness stand.

Other loves in the life of Myrtie St. Pierre were brought out by attorneys for Hutton as they cross-examined the nurse. These preceded, she testified, the romance with Hutton.

Eight years ago, she said she was married to H. H. Harrington, son of a Pasadena financier, but in 1925 they were divorced. There followed an affair with Edgar Eben, a theater organist, "but that romance never developed into marriage," she testified.

Third Man in Her Life.
The third man in her life, Hutton's attorneys brought out, was George Street Jr., whom she said
she married in July, 1927, a month after her divorce from Harrington became final.

As a recess was called, a woman
leading two little girls and a boy gained the attorney's table. She demanded an audience with Hutton's lawyers and they retired to an ante-chamber. Soon Hutton emerged and exclaimed:

"The information she has is marvelous but I won't pay her a dime for it." The woman claimed she has knowledge of a "sensational story" which would quash
the case. Miss St. Pierre's attorney, seeing the woman, told reporters:
"She has been trying to sell us a story for three or four days."

Hutton's attorneys brought out that her real name was Myrtle Hazel St. Pierre, and that she added "because I liked the beauty of the name and because it was the name of one of my French ancestors."

Before his marriage to the evangelist, Miss St. Pierre testified in her $200,000 breach of promise suit Hutton told her marriage was a man-made institution that could be ignored at times.

"He made violent love to me,"
she said. "You must be a wife to me to prove your love," he insisted.
He held me so tightly. He smothered me with kisses.

In the midst of her story Miss St. Pierre testified that she had fainted and fell from the witness stand. She continued with the aid of smelling salts.

So intimate were the details that the court ordered the room cleared of all who did not have an immediate interest in the case.

He sang love songs to her, Miss St. Pierre testified; swore he could not live without her, called her tender names, promised to "build a lovely little nest," and repeatedly asked her to marry him. She accepted, she continued, and a wedding date was tentatively fixed for March, 1931. The breach of promise suit was filed after "Tut-tut's" marriage to Mrs. McPherson. Hutton was a choir singer in his wife's Four Square Gospel Angelus Temple here.

Meanwhile, unaware of the trial,
Mrs. McPherson Hutton was confined to a sanitarium, suffering from a nervous breakdown. Reporters were allowed to talk to her yesterday only on condition they would not discuss the trial. She has said she would stand by her husband in his legal troubles.

"I try so hard to get well," she said. "I am so tired and it is hard to go on. I want to see my son's baby when it comes."

Three Burned to Death in Crash.

LANCASTER, Pa., June 22.—
Three men were burned to death
and another injured in a collision
of three trucks on the Lincoln Highway near here today. The dead: Philip Hovey, 18 years old, Philadelphia; Howard McAllister, Wilmington, Del.; Howard Stark,
Mount Joy. The injured man is Edward Hovey, brother of Philip.

SMITH IN CHICAGO
TO LEAD HIS FIGHT FOR NOMINATION

plank?" "I can't tell until I see the product of the committee,"
Smith said. He had appointed Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City
as his floor manager. "He leads the grand march," the 1928 nominee added with a grin.

Asked what the Democrats should do on the whole to assure success in November, Smith replied
"Write an honest, straightforward and clear platform and nominate me."

"How many ballots will that take?" "That depends on how fast
the delegates can see."

Smith said it depended entirely upon developments between now and the first day of the convention
next Monday whether he would address the convention on any issue.

He said he was opposed to a cash bonus plank but that he did not care to state the reasons at this time.

"What about Speaker Garner's statement (urging prohibition repeal)?"

"The more the merrier," Smith said, concluding the interview.

Smith said he favored Shouse
for permanent chairman and would take the floor if necessary to shout as the Governor, a cane in one hand and a straw hat in the other, stepped from the train. A cheer went up from the crowd.

Mrs. Smith, her face almost hidden by a bunch of orchids, posed with her husband.

Smith was the second of the Democratic presidential candidates to arrive. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia came yesterday.

The arrival of the man who led the party's presidential fight in 1928 brought hundreds of persons thronging into the station.

Cordell Hull Arrives.

Close behind Smith, Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, prominently mentioned as chairman of the Resolutions Committee, arrived with the statement that he found the consensus of wets and dries in the party to be for submitting to the people the question of repeal or retention of the eighteenth amendment.

Hull, a prohibitionist, said he had found in conferences at the capital that virtually all elements of the party wanted submission to the states the question of retaining or repealing the eighteenth
amendment.

"Meet the Economic Issue."

However Hull criticized severely
those who are making prohibition
the dominant issue in the convention and in the campaign.

"I am not minimizing prohibition," said this supporter of Roosevelt, "but it is a damnable
outrage that this subject is paramount to the economic crisis. The people ought to rise up and kick
all the politicians into Lake Michigan if they don't meet the economic issue."

Economy by "ruthless retrenchment" in Federal, state and local governments was advocated by Hull, together with a straight declaration for reduction of the tariff.

Headquarters were opened during the day for another presidential candidate—former Senator
James A. Reed of Missouri. Ed-
S. Villmoare, who opened the quarters, said the Missouri delegation would stand for the former Senator until he released them.

Spokenmen for three of the contesting delegations in the Louisiana, Porto Rico and Minnesota contests said in a letter to Chairman Raskob of the Democratic National Committee today that they would not recognize the credentials

BOY, 14, TAKES STAND
AT HIS MURDER TRIAL

St. Louisian Says at Doniphan
That Confession Was Forced From Him.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
DONIPHAN, Mo., June 22.—
Estle Austill, 14 years old, of St.
Louis, who is being tried for murder
here took the witness stand in his own defense today after the State had presented a confession bearing his signature.

The confession, which counsel
for young Austill had tried to exclude from the evidence, was obtained from him by use of the third degree, the defendant testified.

Cross examination of State's witnesses was intended to show that W. E. Haley, 55-year-old filling station proprietor of Poplar Bluff,
had grappled with the boy for possession of a pistol with which the prisoner had tried to rob Haley on Jan. 10. The pistol had been stolen from the boy's uncle, Clyde Anderson.

Witnesses for the State were called and questioned in rapid order. Among them were Dugale Fisher, operator of a restaurant
next door to the Haley filling station in North Poplar Bluff; Robert Kidd, James Haley, son of the slain man; Maud W. E. Haley, widow; Jerry Harwell, Ralph Finney and Reginald Harwell. Their testimony was brought out to show how Haley was killed.

So large was the crowd at today's hearing that Judge Robert I.
Cope ordered that no one be permitted to leave the courtroom during process of questioning witnesses.

The jury of 12 farmers, selected yesterday, is composed of heads of families. An effort was made by Prosecuting Attorney John Phillips to eliminate those men who are fathers of boys about the age of Austill.

Judge Cope hopes to complete the case with a night session tonight.

MORE RELATIVES OF WENDELS

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 22.—Claiming fourth degree relationship two more persons asserted their pretensions yesterday to the huge estate of Ella V. von E. Wendel, fifth avenue heiress.

William R. Dew, 51 years old of Maynor, W. Va., and James Floyd
Dew, 53, of Laing, W. Va., petitioned Surrogate John P. O'Brien through counsel for permission to file claims of particular setting forth their claims they are grandchildren of the testator's grandparents. Decision was reserved.

subcommittee which was to start hearing the contests tomorrow.
They said they would appear before the full committee Friday.

The letter was signed by Senator Huey Long of Louisiana, Joseph Wolfe of Minnesota and Mrs. Jean Whittemore of Porto Rico, each of whom heads one of the contesting delegations. It said the subcommittee had not been regularly set up because the National Committee had passed no resolution authorizing any official to create such a subcommittee.

South Carolina Delegation to Favor
Re submission.

By the Associated Press.
COLUMBIA, S. C., June 22.—
Claude N. Sapp, chairman of the South Carolina delegation to the national Democratic convention, today announced the delegation, with 18 votes, favors resubmission of the prohibition question.

The delegation will be bound by the unit rule. Fay Desportes, designated as a member of the National Platform and Resolutions Committee, yesterday issued a statement advocating outright repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

GIRL AUTO VICTIM;
ACTOR'S ADOPTED SON
HELD IN HER DEATH

George Blockburger, Granite
City, Acted as Go-Between in Pershall Kidnaping.

George Blockburger, Granite
City real estate dealer and professional bondsman, was convicted of a statutory offense and his punishment fixed at 10 years in prison
by a jury at Edwardsville today.

Blockburger, who acted as go-between two years ago in the kidnaping of his friend, Charles W.
Pershall, wealthy Granite City speculator, furnished $10,000 bond pending an appeal.

The complaining witness was a 15-year-old girl, who testified to misconduct with the real estate
dealer, who is 55, in his office on State street in Granite City on several occasions last year. Block-burger promised to help her mother and to tend his services toward effecting the release of her sister from prison, the girl said. She testified that her 17-year-old sister accompanied her on several visits to Blockburger.

Blockburger, who is married and lives at 2774 Madison avenue, denied the charge. He testified the girl's mother rented a home from him, and that the girl accompanied her mother to his office on several occasions, but never was there alone. He previously had described the charge as a "frame-up." The jury deliberated three hours last night, returning a sealed verdict, which was read this morning.

In the Pershall kidnaping, Block-
burger admitted delivering $40,000
to the kidnappers, explaining that he acted as an unwilling go-between because of his friendship for Pershall.

PLEADS GUILTY OF BLACKMAIL

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 22.—
Charles Donkin, 55 years old, of New York, pleaded guilty today to charges of blackmail and being an accessory to embezzling $96,000
from the Modern Building & Loan Association. He went on trial yesterday but changed his plea to guilty today.

A story of 10 years of striving to reimburse Donkin for money lost in a real estate deal was told by Howard Wandless, 50, former secretary of the association. Wandless pleaded guilty to an embezzlement charge and testified for the commonwealth against Donkin.
Wandless said he tried to reimburse Donkin with association
funds and later Donkin extorted $96,000 from him on threats of sending him to jail. Both men will be sentenced later.

INDIANA PICKS WETS FOR GOVERNOR RACE

Both Candidates Are Legion Leaders; Van Nuys to Oppose Watson for Senate.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 22.—Two World War veterans will contest for Indiana's governorship in November, each on party platforms calling for repeal of the question of repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and repeal of the State's "bone dry" enforcement act. Paul V. McNutt of Bloomington, 41-year-old dean of the law school at Indiana University and former national commander of the American Legion, was nominated by the Democratic State convention yesterday. He was unopposed, two other candidates having withdrawn. McNutt will oppose Raymond S. Springer of Connersville, first commander of the Indiana department of the Legion, nominated recently by the Republican State convention.

The Democrats will place in the field against the veteran Republican United States Senator James E. Watson, Frederick Van Nuys of Indianapolis, who won the nomination over Walter Myers, also of Indianapolis.

Platforms of the parties are similar, each recommending submission of the repeal question to non-partisan State conventions, and declaring against return of the saloon. The Democratic platform added a declaration "that the ultimate control of the liquor traffic shall rest with the sovereign states."

Daniel Carter Beard 82 Years Old. By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, June 22.—Daniel Carter Beard, national commissioner of the Boy Scouts of America, observed his eighty-second birthday quietly yesterday.

Funeral for Two Army Flyers. SAN ANTONIO, Tex., June 22.—Joint funeral services with military honors were held yesterday for Lieut. Mark O. Travis and Private Dale Burch of the Twenty-second Observation Squadron, Brooks Field, who were killed when their plane crashed and burned Monday. The body of Lieut. Travis was sent to his home in Montgomery, Ala., and that of Private Burch to Danville, Ill.

M'ADOO SAYS PROHIBITION
OBSCURES MORE VITAL ISSUES

Favors Referendum; Won't Discuss Repeal Advocated by Garner, Whom He Is Backing.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., June 22.—William Gibbs McAdoo expressed the opinion today that the prohibition question had obscured other more important issues. Incidentally declaring he favored an immediate referendum on the question. Flying to Chicago from the West Coast, McAdoo declined to express himself on the advocacy of prohibition repeal by Speaker Garner, whom he supports for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"Any proposal to repeal or modify the eighteenth amendment should be decided by a direct vote of the people," he said. "This can be done by an act of Congress providing for a special election at which no other issue shall be submitted. This should be done by a special session of the new Congress under the new President. The session should be held before the new Congress convenes in December, 1932."

After such a special election we would know the will of the people in every state and every congressional district. This would be an advisory referendum only, however, for the Constitution does not authorize a mandatory referendum. But there is no doubt Congress would follow the will of the people, whichever way it went."

CAPTURED 18 YEARS AFTER ESCAPE FROM PENITENTIARY

Former California Convict Married
in New York and Has Two Daughters.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 22.—A man who had worked in New York as a truck driver during the 18 years since he escaped from San Quentin prison in California, was in the police lineup today, under arrest as a fugitive from justice.

The man, William Collins, was arrested at his Bronx home last night, and in admitting the charge against him in the lineup today expressed the hope the Governor of California would grant him a pardon.

Collins, who went as a youth from Dallas, Tex., to California, was arrested in 1911 in Sacramento for the holdup of a street car conductor and sentenced to 25 years in San Quentin prison. Dec. 23, 1912, he escaped through a trap door to the roof and thence down a pipe on the wall. He reached New York soon afterward and obtained employment as a truck driver. Since then he has married and has two daughters.

The arrest of Collins came about as the result of a fight a year ago, in which he struck a man and was held for felonious assault. His fingerprints were taken, but the charge was dismissed when the complainant refused to press it. Meanwhile Collins' fingerprints had been sent to Washington and there it was discovered that he had escaped from San Quentin. Police were unable to locate him until recently.

MERCHANT ROBBED OF $478
AFTER AUTO IS FORCED TO CURB

Jacob Schramm Held Up Near 2500 North Market on Way to Bank.

Jacob Schramm, proprietor of a dry goods store at 2903 North Newmarket avenue, to drive to the Cass Bank & Trust Co., Thirteenth street and Cass avenue, yesterday afternoon when two men in another automobile forced his machine to the curb near 2500 North Market street. One with a revolver entered Schramm's machine, robbed him of an envelope containing $478 and checks and got out, escaping with the accomplice. Part of the stolen money was his and part receipts from a collection branch of the Union Electric Light & Power Co. in his store.

Police dispatched to 415A East Marceau avenue by radio last night arrested a man leaving the place who was identified by Edward Meyer of that address as one of two robbers who had held him up. Meyer said he saw two men get out of an automobile, in which there was a third man, and go to the rear of his home. When he found them in the kitchen, he was robbed of $4 and the robbers demanded $200 more. They were beating him when his wife, Mrs. Vera Meyer, arrived home, and she was slapped and beaten.

SWINDLED BY 'RADIO SINGER'

Optometrist Says Woman Got $1
— But Didn't Give Him Ad.

Dr. Henry Kissel, optometrist, 2224 South Broadway, told police last night he had been defrauded by a red-haired young woman giving her first name as Virginia, who offered to sing over radio and advertise his business for $1.

He said she sold him a subscription to a magazine for $1 a week ago and then solicited the additional money for the radio advertisement. Last night, at the appointed hour, he tuned in on a local station to hear the song. Failing to hear the one he expected, he called the station and learned that "Virginia" was not a member of the staff and never had been.

CONGRESSMAN'S WIFE FINED
WASHINGTON, June 22.—Mrs. Bertha Huddleston, wife of Representative Huddleston of Alabama, was fined $50 in Police Court today after pleading guilty of reckless driving.

Mrs. Huddleston was arrested with a man companion the night of June 8 after the automobile she was driving collided with two other cars. She was booked at that time on a charge of driving while intoxicated. The charge was changed by Stanley Daniels, Assistant Corporation Counsel, when Mrs. Huddleston appeared in court.

CHINESE MEDAL ADDED

MEDAL GIVEN LINDBERGH

BY CHIANG KAI-SHEK SHOWN

Chinese Decoration Placed With 125 Others on Display at Jefferson Memorial.

A decoration presented to Col. Lindbergh last year by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, President of China, was placed on display today at Jefferson Memorial, making the 125th medal in the Lindbergh trophy collection. It was received yesterday from Lindbergh.

The Chinese decoration, a gold five-pointed star with red, white and blue enamel, is one of the most elaborate in the collection. In the center of the medal a gold plane is shown against a rising sun flying over the sea.

Woman Burns Self to Death.
FORT WORTH, Tex., June 22.—A young woman whose gasoline-soaked clothing was found ablaze died in a hospital here today. She gave her name as Mrs. Winnie R. Matthews, 20 years old. After failing to obtain work at concessions along the board walk at Lake Worth, she purchased a quart of gasoline and obtained matches. Later she was found in a ditch with her clothing afire, and mumbling, "I love you."

U. S. Receivers for Durant Motors.
DETROIT, Mich., June 22.—Judge Edward J. Molner, today named Federal receivers for the Durant Motors, Inc., Lansing, with the consent of the company and ordered a special master in chancery to list the creditors and estimate the claims. The Central Trust Co., Lansing and H. F. Hermann, Lansing were appointed receivers and William S. Sayre Jr., master in chancery, was appointed special master.

EUCCHARISTIC CONGRESS STEP-MOTHER GETS

IS OPENED IN DUBLIN

Legate Conveys Pope's Praise for Ireland in Introductory Speech.

Alleged to Have Beaten Children Daily for 5 Years—Scared Tongue of One.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, June 22.—Lorenzo Cardinal Lauri, Papal legate, formally opened the thirty-first international Eucharistic Congress today before the Irish hierarchy and prelates from many parts of the world.

Cardinal Lauri brought a special message to Ireland as he stood in the pro-cathedral. Outside, multitudes were gathered and listened to his words broadcast through loudspeakers.

"I am in your midst," said the representative of the Vatican, "with this most privileged duty to perform—to represent the Pope, to bring to you his greetings and blessing, to bring to you—I cannot say it better—all of his great heart, beating always with the deepest love for Ireland, which is never second to any country in the Holy Father's affections."

The ceremony closed with the great hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers." Tomorrow at 12:30 a. m., a solemn high pontifical mass will be celebrated in the pro-cathedral. There will be sectional meetings tomorrow of the various nationalities attending the congress. Americans will meet in the Lord Mayor's residence. At 8 p. m. tomorrow there will be a gigantic mass meeting of men in Phoenix Park at which Cardinal Lauri will preside. A garden party given in Cardinal Lauri's honor yesterday included leading representatives of the various Irish political factions. Governor-General McNeill, President De Valera and William T. Cosgrave, leader of the opposition in the Dail, were among the guests at the fête, which was held in Blackrock College. More than 16,000 persons crowded the lawns. Cardinal Lauri, surrounded by purple-robed bishops, gave his blessing to the throng.

New Head of Rotary International. SEATTLE, Wash., June 22.—Clinton F. Anderson, 37-year-old insurance man of Albuquerque, N. M., and former newspaper editor, was elected president of Rotary International yesterday.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 22.—An 11-year-old boy and a girl of 12 told in court a story of cruelty, starvation and inhuman treatment that sent their stepmother, Mrs. Jennie Pacer, to jail for a year.

The children, Clara and Edward Pacer, said yesterday they had been beaten with whips and fists by their stepmother almost daily for five years. Their only food, they said, was scraps from the table at which sat Mrs. Pacer's own five children.

Edward testified that Mrs. Pacer seared his tongue with a red hot butcher knife when hunger drove him to steal a bite of sausage from the kitchen. One of Clara's teeth was missing, knocked out, she said, by a blow from her stepmother's fist.

Both children said they were forced to steal food for Mrs. Pacer and her children; that they were forced to sell beer which she brewed, and that Edward often was awakened in the night to be sent out to buy whisky for her.

The case was brought to court, prosecutors said, when neighbors and school teachers noticed bruises and welts on the children's bodies.

NEW CHILD GUARDIANS NAMED

Mayor Makes Three Appointments to Board.

Appointment of three members of the Board of Children's Guardians was announced by Mayor Miller yesterday, as follows: Mrs. Ollinda Hillenkoetter, 4147 Greenleaf place, to succeed Mrs. Charles B. Ellis; Maurice Well, 265 Union boulevard, to succeed Edmund J. Marx; Alfred M. Roth, 5604 Kingsbury court, re-appointed. The new members will serve four years on a board of 12. Mrs. Ellis, who was chairman of the board, and the Mayor disagreed politically when she supported her son-in-law, William Featherer, for City Collector in 1928. The Mayor supported Alderman Neumann.

MAYOR KILLS ROBBER, ROUTS TWO OTHERS ON HIGHWAY

South Chicago Heights Official Rescues to Halt Car, Returns Fire of Men.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 22.—A Mayor of a suburban community called the bluff of three robbers on a deserted highway early today and shot one of them to death and forced the others to flee.

The Mayor, George A. Hahn, of the village of South Chicago Heights, was en route home with a neighbor, Mrs. Court Kraemer, when the robbers' car pulled up alongside his about 20 miles south of the loop and its occupants commanded him to stop. He refused, and, advising Mrs. Kraemer to "lay low," he stepped on the accelerator. The holdup men fired four bullets into his car and all of them narrowly missed him. He returned the fire and saw one of the men fall to the pavement. The others fled.

While Hahn hastened to summon police reinforcements, a youthful driver of a bullet-pierced car called at St. James Hospital in Chicago Heights with the body of a man identified as Dominick Guzzino, 22 years old, of Chicago Heights. The youth, Herman Scaccia, 20, was arrested but denied any complicity in the attempted holdup. He said he found Guzzino wounded in the car and drove him to the hospital.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

SMITH FACTION WINS CONTROL IN MINNESOTA VOTE

"Rumpers" Who Bolted State Convention Will Attempt to Unseat Roosevelt Delegation at Chicago

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 22.—Democratic "rumpers," who bolted the State convention when a delegation was instructed for Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination, have achieved a surprise victory in Monday's State-wide primaries.

After the defection the "rumpers" organized their own convention, selected an uninstructed delegation mostly favorable to Alfred E. Smith, and entered candidates in the primary in a successful effort to wrest control of the State party machinery from the Roosevelt group.

Now the "rumpers" say they will use the victory to support charges that unfair methods were employed at the convention and will attempt to prevent seating of Minnesota's Roosevelt delegation to the national convention next week in Chicago.

John E. Regan, who won the party's nomination for Governor, asserted that the triumph of the "rumpers" was a result of "repudiation" of the Roosevelt endorsement. He said "the repudiation reflected growing sentiment throughout the nation."

Prohibition recommittees won a majority of places in the contest for congressional nominations in which 88 candidates were entered for three parties with nine nominated by each. Incomplete returns placed nine men favorable to recommittees in the lead for Democratic nominations. Eight of the Farmer-Labor leaders were favorable to submission with the position of the eighth, John Paul Kvale, incumbent, not stated.

Eight of the leaders for Republican nominations favor recommittees or repeal of the eighteenth amendment with one out-and-out dry, N. J. Holmberg, apparently assured a place by strong rural support.

Republican leaders included Harold Knutson, W. I. Nolan, William A. Pittenger, August H. Andersen and Melvin J. Maas, incumbents. Another incumbent, C. G. Selvig, a dry, threatened to replace Maas. Two dry incumbents, Victor Christgau and Godfrey G. Goodwin, were apparently eliminated.

TESTIMONY SHOWS LOANS OF $23,394 TO CAR WASHERS

Same Amount Was Deposited to Account of Officer on Trial for Embezzlement.

By the Associated Press.

MEDIA, Pa., June 22.—The record of the trial of four bank officers charged with embezzling $35,000 to today contains testimony purporting to show that on the same day two Negro car washers were credited with receiving $23,394 in loans from the closed Suburban Title & Trust Co., that amount was deposited in two bank accounts of John M. Hardcastle Jr., former vice-president.

The car washers, Earl H. Lewis and Stanley E. Sadler, introduced by the prosecution as "straw men," testified they had received fees ranging up to $10 for signing mortgages. The prosecution then brought out testimony as to the two Delaware County banks in which deposits were made for Hardcastle.

Other testimony yesterday came from real estate experts who said that many lots on which the bank made loans had been appraised above their real value.

Hardcastle is one of the four officers against whom the embezzlement charges have been brought.

EX-GOV. MAJOR WILL SPEAK FOR BENNETT CLARK TONIGHT

G. B. Arnold to Champion Wilson at Meeting at Carondelet Branch Library.

Former Gov. Elliott W. Major will speak in behalf of Bennett C. Clark, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Senator, at a meeting of the Twelfth Ward Democratic Club in Carondelet Branch Library, 6800 Michigan avenue, tonight. Major studied law under Clark's father, the late Speaker Champ Clark, in Pike County.

Former Judge Glendy B. Arnold will speak in support of the candidacy of Francis M. Wilson for Governor at the same meeting.

Blodgett Priest, a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, will speak at a meeting of the Sixteenth Ward Progressive Republican Club, 420 South Garrison avenue, tonight. Candidates for nominations for local offices also will speak.

Three Burned to Death in Crash.

LANCASTER, Pa., June 22.—Three men were burned to death and another injured in a collision of three trucks on the Lincoln Highway near here today. The dead: Philip Hovey, 18 years old, Philadelphia; Howard McAllister, Wilmington, Del.; Howard Stark, 30, Mount Joy. The injured man is Edward Hovey, brother of Philip.

Roy F. Britton Keeps A. A. A. Post.

13-YEAR-OLD BOY DROWNED

When Wading in River

Youth Swimming Nearby Falls in Rescue at Foot of Madison Street.

Robert Schuler, 13 years old, was drowned while wading in the Mississippi River at the foot of Madison street at 3:30 p. m. yesterday.

He was about 20 feet from shore when he cried out, and sank. Clarence Miller, 17 years old, of 2628 North Ninth street, who was swimming nearby, went to Robert's assistance, but was unable to reach him before he was carried away by the current. The body was not recovered.

$10,000 IS VOTED FOR STUDY OF GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS

House Provides Money After Hearing Complaints Against Barge Line.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 22.—The House decided yesterday to let the Shannon Committee, which is studying Government competition with private business, have $10,000 for its expenses.

A resolution providing this sum was adopted unanimously after two witnesses—Bruce Dwinell of Chicago and Howard E. Krouse of Williamsport, Pa.—had complained of specific instances of Government competition.

Dwinell told the committee that railroads object to competition from the Inland Waterways Corporation's barge line. Krouse complained that the Quartermaster Department of the Army at Jeffersonville, Ind., bids for leather contracts offered by the Postoffice Department in competition with private concerns.

WARNER BROS. REPLY TO RECEIVERSHIP SUIT

Deny Harry Koplar's Charges of Mismanagement; Admit $7,918,604 Loss.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 22.—In an answer to a receivership suit brought by Harry Koplar, a St. Louis stockholder, Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., admitted a net loss of $7,918,604 for the year ending Aug. 29, 1931, but denied allegations of mismanagement.

Admitting the corporation paid large salaries to Ruth Chatterton and William Powell and that Constance Bennett was employed to make two motion pictures at a salary of $150,000 each, the answer denied the film stars were won over from competitors by irregularities.

The answer further denied the allegation of the original complaint that Goldman Sachs & Co., and Hayden Stone & Co., sold about

BOTH for 98¢

($1.50 Value)

Never before was there an opportunity like this. But you must act quickly. Even though we took the entire output of the manufacturer, the "Fillables" are so popular that we do not expect them to remain long on your druggist's shelf.

The new "Fillable" will delight you the moment you see it.

If you are a man, you will be won by its simplicity and sturdiness. It's the kind of a friendly, serviceable, non-leakable bottle that fits compactly in weekend bag or travel case.

If you are a woman, you will be charmed by the smartness, grace, and beauty of the flask itself, with its appealing, white jade effect and its pert, black, non-leakable cap.

The "Fillable" adds a note of color and beauty to the dressing table or bathroom cabinet. In your over-night bag, or suitcase, the "Fillable" fits snugly, where the regular shape, Listerine bottle might be inconvenient.

Remember, you can get the "Fillable" and the large 14 oz. size bottle of Listerine, for 98¢ at your druggist's. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

WARNER BROS. REPLY TO RECEIVERSHIP SUIT

Deny Harry Koplar's Charges
 of Mismanagement; Admit $7,918,604 Loss.

By the Associated Press.
 WILMINGTON, Del., June 22.—
 In an answer to a receivership suit brought by Harry Koplar, a St.
 Louis stockholder, Warner Brothers
 Pictures, Inc., admitted a net loss
 of $7,918,604 for the year ending
 Aug. 29, 1931, but denied allegations of mismanagement.

Admitting the corporation paid
 large salaries to Ruth Chatterton
 and William Powell and that Constance Bennett was employed to make two motion pictures at a salary of $150,000 each, the answer denied the film stars were won over from competitors by irregularities.

The answer further denied the allegation of the original complaint
 that Goldman Sachs & Co., and Hayden Stone & Co., sold about

$15,000,000 worth of the corporation's stock at a price 20 times greater than its market value and declared relations with these firms were terminated in May, 1931, and their representatives resigned from the Warner Brothers directorate.

The corporation also admitted acquiring the music publishing firm of M. Witmark & Sons, but denied this and other publishing houses were taken over to provide jobs for the sons of Warner Brothers directors, as the receivership petition alleged.

Koplar's suit named as individual defendants Harry M. Warner, Albert Warner, Wadill Catchings,
 Henry A. Rudkin, Harold S. Bar-
 ford, Stanleigh P. Friedman, Abel Carey Thomas, Moe Mark, Jack L.
 Warner, Morris Wolf and Sam E.
 Morris, officers or directors of Warner Brothers.

APPELLATE COURT SUSPENDS LAWYER FOR SIX MONTHS

Finds Glenn Jones, Valley Park, Unlawfully Retained Money Belonging to Clients.

Glenn Jones, attorney of Valley Park, was suspended from the practice of law for six months yesterday by St. Louis Court of Appeals, which ruled that he had unlawfully retained money belonging to his clients.

The charges were contained in a disbarment petition filed by the Committee on Grievances and Legal Ethics of the Missouri Bar Association. The case was heard by the Court of Appeals June 3. Its decision was entered on the Court's records yesterday. There was no formal opinion.

It might effect in interest charges of the railroad which might be successful in getting such loans. The Erie, for example, has outstanding a $50,000,000 issue of 5 per cent bonds which now sell around $9,500,000; the Illinois Central has $35,000,000 of 4 1/2 per cents
 selling around $8,400,000; the Rock Island, $21,325,000 of 4 1/2 per cents
 selling around $4,920,000, and the Missouri Pacific, $61,250,000 of 5
 per cents selling around $17,150-000. These four issues, alone, representing an aggregate par value of $178,475,000, are selling for total market valuation of $30,542,000, or 23 cents on the dollar. Annual interest charges total $4,575,000.

Income of the Erie last year was $14,906,000 against bond interest requirements of $12,422,000; of the Illinois Central, $14,444,000, against $15,765,000; of the Rock Island, $12,992,000, against $13,375,000,
 and of the Missouri Pacific, $23-048,000, against $19,972,000.

While they approve the suggestion in principle, bankers find some serious drawbacks. Foremost,
 probably, would be the need of secrecy if such a plan were to be fully successful.

The principal advantage of such a program would be in the reduc-

John Hughes Curtis says he was tricked into confession

NORFOLK, Va., June 22.—John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, awaiting trial at Flemington, N. J., on a charge of obstructing justice in the search for the kidnapers and murderers of the Lindbergh baby, has issued a statement through his attorneys repudiating an alleged confession he previously had made to
 New Jersey police.

In his statement Curtis, who is to go on trial next Monday, charged
 he was tricked into making the supposed confession in which he said
 his "negotiations" for the return of the Lindbergh baby had been products of his imagination and were not founded on fact.
 "Everything I said in the first place was true," the statement said, referring to Curtis' first report to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the murdered child's father, that he was in contact with the kidnapers of the child and working for the baby's return. He referred to his work on the case early in March,

 long before it was learned the baby
 had been killed.

 600 FAMILIES ON FARMS

Gov. Roosevelt Says 3500 Applications Have Been Received in Back to Land Plan.

By the Associated Press.
 ALBANY, N. Y., June 22.—The back to the farm unemployment relief plan of Gov. Roosevelt is being applied in the case of about 600 families, the executive said last night.

The families have been placed on farms "borrowed" by the State after mortgage foreclosures have taken them from the hands of their original owners. Banks of the State, Roosevelt said, were cooperating with the unemployment relief administration in temporarily allowing use of the farms for providing a means of livelihood to city workers whose jobs vanished in the depression.

Almost 3500 letters have been received by the Governor or the relief agency, inquiring for opportunity to grow a food crop on the farms. The procedure of the State has been to finance, in a small way,
 the city dwellers, to set them up in the farming business. From outside of the New York State approximately 10 permits have written Gov. Roosevelt, asking if they could become residents and take advantage of the farm plan, the executive said.

Borah Finds Disarmament Plan Of Hoover "Fair and Sound"

Joins Other Congressional Leaders in Expressing Approval of Suggestion for Cut of One-Third.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—President Hoover's disarmament proposal drew the immediate approval today of Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who only two days ago announced he would not support the President for re-election on the party platform.

Borah said the plan seemed "fair and sound" and expressed the hope it would bring a realization to the conference that failure to disarm would "bring an irreparable disaster." The Foreign Relations Chairman, in a formal statement, said:

"Looking over the President's proposal somewhat hurriedly, it seems to me fair and sound. I am for drastic reduction of armaments and so long as all nations are treated fairly I do not care much how it is brought about."

"I sincerely hope the proposal of the President will bring the conference to a realization that a failure to lift this burden of armaments and do it at once will come near to being an irreparable disaster."

"If we should fail to bring about drastic disarmament and the reparations and money problems should remain unsettled, it would be difficult to foresee the evil consequences which would follow."

Informed of the Hoover proposal, Chairman Evans of the House Appropriations Committee said: "I am heartily in favor of a reduction in military and naval armaments. But it seems to me the President's appeal would have been more timely before both houses of Congress had passed huge appropriations for next year's army and navy expenditures."

"When Congress did try to cut, we were fought every step of the way by administration officials. This was especially true of my bill to consolidate the War and Navy departments and save from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 annually for the taxpayers. With a little co-operation from the President we would have led the way toward the reduction now urged on the world by Mr. Hoover."

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, a Republican stalwart of the House of the Military Affairs Committee, conferred briefly with the President later.

"I believe," Reed told newspapermen, "that this is a sound proposal for reducing the burden of taxation."

Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee, said: "I am heartily in accord with the President's plan. I hope the Geneva conference will be able to bring about a world-wide reduction to minimize the danger of war and save money."

Chairman Collins of the House War Department Appropriation Sub-Committee remarked: "I don't think Mr. Hoover knows anything about modern warfare or he wouldn't want to reduce the only things that are any good—air planes, gas, smoke, machine guns, tanks and the like. The only thing to do is to lop off personnel and substitute machines."

Senator King (Dem.), Utah, said: "This is not as favorable a proposal by any means as has been submitted by Senator Grandi of Italy. Litvittoff, for Russia, submitted several proposals, all of which were more far reaching than the suggestion of President Hoover. At any rate, it has some merit, but it fails to take into consideration factors which in any disarmament proposition must be considered."

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, who was a member of the American delegation to the London Naval Conference, said the President's proposal probably would disclose whether the Geneva conference is to fail.

"Manifestly, little progress is being made and the published proceedings do not indicate that substantial reductions in either land or naval armaments are in prospect," said Robinson. "President Hoover's suggestion, as I interpret it, does not look to any cutting down of the land forces of the United States since they are probably now below the standard which he suggests."

"If the naval Powers would consent to a reduction of approximately one-third of their present strength, none would be imperiled by the policy and all would be benefited by consequent lighter tax burdens."

BANK OF U. S. COUNSEL ACQUITTED OF PERJURY

Isidor J. Kresel Freed at Direction of Court After Court Closes Its Case.

NEW YORK, June 22.—Isidor J. Kresel, former counsel and director of the closed Bank of United States, was acquitted of a perjury charge today by direction of the court.

He had been indicted for testimony he gave before the grand jury and later at the trial of principal officers of the bank. The verdict of acquittal was ordered in response to a defense motion made yesterday after the State had closed its case. Before the motion was made former Governor Alfred E. Smith was called as a witness for the defense and testified that Kresel's reputation was "of the very best."

Judge Samuel J. Harris, presiding at the trial, instructed for acquittal on the ground that the testimony on which Kresel was indicted was not material to the issue in the trial of Bernard K. Marcus and Saul and Herbert Singer, the bank officers, for misapplication of the bank's funds. The trial closed at 2, the directed verdict today was the second time Kresel had been called to account for apparent divergence in his grand jury and court testimony. The first trial ended in a mistrial as a result of one of the jurors visiting Kresel at his home and asking for financial aid. Kresel immediately reported this action. The juror was arrested and the trial stopped.

We agree, Madam, Nothing could make dishwashing a pleasure

BUT see how much easier it is with the New Oxydol

Three times a day, 366 days this year, women must wash dishes! But there's a way to make it easier now. Sprinkle the New Oxydol in your dishpan—and see how quick and easy dishwashing becomes. Its lively suds cut grease like a flash so dishes rinse sparkling clean! Rich, long-lasting suds are the secret of easy clothes washing, too. Oxydol's busy suds float dirt out of clothes and hold it out so they are fresh and clean. That's why the New Oxydol saves your work and time—because it makes 50% more suds—richer, thicker, more fragrant suds. And it's so easy on your hands you know it's safe for dainty things. Use enough for rich suds—it never balls up or leaves a scum even in the hardest water—and all water turns hard when you put in dirty clothes or dishes.

GOV. CAULFIELD DECIDES TO GIVE MEADOWS HEARING

Appeal for Commutation of Sentence to Life Imprisonment to Be Made.

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH. JEFFERSON CITY, June 22.—A clemency hearing for Andrew B. Meadows, Buckingham Hotel Annex watchman, sentenced to be hanged July 19 for murder and arson, will be held Monday by Gov. Caulfield.

The hearing was arranged by the Governor after he had received a letter from Herbert H. Blair, attorney appointed by the Court to defend Meadows, which related that certain facts outside the record would warrant commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment.

Meadows was one of three men convicted of murder and arson after the Buckingham Hotel fire in December, 1927, in which seven persons lost their lives. The Supreme Court recently affirmed his conviction, but motion for a rehearing is pending. Meadows and Ralph Pearson were sentenced to be hanged, and Robert Cotham was sentenced to 10 years in prison. Pearson's appeal has not been decided by the Supreme Court.

CONVICTED, BITES 8 JURORS

Prisoner Breaks Away When Father Hits Guard With Judge's Gavel.

ANTIOCH, Ill., June 22.—With the aid of his 90-year-old but nimble father, Jack Wilcox broke away in Justice of the Peace Court yesterday and bit eight jurors who had convicted him of biting the Antioch Town Marshal, John Brogan, when Brogan arrested him for driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Wilcox's aged father grabbed the Judge's gavel and hit the Deputy Marshal, James Horn, as Horn was leading Wilcox from the courtroom. Horn let go his prisoner, who then dived into the jury box to start biting. The services of two surgeons were required to sew up the injured. Wilcox was finally subdued and taken to jail at Waukegan.

How Do Mothers Manage To Do All They Do?

FIRST there's a husband to be fed and sent to work. Then maybe one or two children to attend to. Perhaps a baby who insists on a very early breakfast, a 9:30 bath, and then a nap.

These few items are hardly a patch on the day's schedule. And all this on top of planning three meals a day. How the average every day mother manages to do all she does is a miracle.

As we've said before, we can't help you feed the baby, but we can help you in your household tasks by being convenient and reliable.

There's an A & P store pretty close to every home in town; so when you do snatch time for marketing you won't have far to go. ## James F. Burke, Counsel for G.O.P., Says Both Wets and Drys Got What They Asked for in Platform

Outstanding Principles of Prohibitionists Maintained, While Repeal Advocates Demands Were Granted, He Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 21.—James Francis Burke, general counsel for the Republican National Committee, defends the prohibition plank adopted by the national convention in Chicago.

"The plan is fair to both wets and drys," Burke asserted, "because the major principles of the prohibitionists are preserved; the major demands of the anti-prohibitionists are met."

Burke, who participated in the debate which preceded adoption of the plank, said that upon his arrival from Chicago he found hundreds of letters on his desk, asking for interpretation of the plank. "And I was prompted to answer immediately by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's criticism of the plank," the white-haired lawyer added with a smile.

"One of the greatest evils in American politics is the tendency of partisans on public issues to jump at conclusions," Burke said. "One of my reasons for opposing prohibition is the fact that it converts so many of its enemies into violent extremists."

Deploable Animosity.
"The deplorable animosity which mark the average discussion of this subject render sane conclusions almost impossible."

"The sincerity of both sides is admitted."

"I personally, never believed the eighteenth amendment belonged in the Constitution. I believed it to be a police power specifically reserved to the states and never intended to be surrendered to the Federal Government."

"I believed it a rigid and far-reaching in its consequences to be lodged in the organic law from which, if the people changed their minds, it could not be dislodged without the greatest difficulty and the lapse of a long period of time."

"Nevertheless it was placed there by Democrats and Republicans alike, approved by 47 states of the union and subsequently ratified by the United States Supreme Court."

"We are now dealing with the question of getting it out of the Constitution and inserting in its place the best substitute that can be devised to deal with the problem which is vexing millions of Americans, who wish it solved sensibly as soon as possible in order that it may be removed from the atmosphere of intemperate discussion."

Demands of Last Six Years.
"Now, since many so-called 'wets' seem to be dissatisfied with the Republican platform, let us face the facts squarely. 'What have they been demanding for the last six years?'"

"First—That they be given a chance to determine by their votes whether the eighteenth amendment shall continue in force, or whether it shall be repealed and forever taken out of the Constitution."

"Second—That they shall be permitted to express their wishes through state constitutional conventions and not through State Legislatures. They have felt that as Legislatures are elected on a multiplicity of issues, throughout the country, the prohibition question might be confused with or subordinated to other questions, and thus a clear-cut verdict prevented."

"Furthermore, they have felt that if the matter were to be submitted to state conventions with no other questions before them, the answer must be definite one way or the other."

"This seemed to be a fair demand, although many prohibitionists opposed it."

"Let Us Be Practical."
"The platform grants both these demands in the plainest English. Consequently, if we triumph in November the people are assured of an opportunity to vote on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, through the medium of state conventions free from all other issues."

"The third question was whether in the event of repeal, there should be some reasonable substitute to take the place of the present rigid prohibition amendment, or whether we should be left groping in the dark through blind controversy for a number of years to come."

"Let us be practical. We must proceed under the Constitution. Nothing can be done without the consent of three-fourths of the states of the Union."

"Since 13 states can prevent repeal of any character, it is absolutely necessary to offer some substitute to which 36 states are likely to agree if we are to make any progress toward solution. In other words, the repealists must win victories in 36 states in order to change conditions, while all the prohibitionists need to do is to center all their efforts in 13 states and induce them to stand pat in order to prolong present deplorable conditions indefinitely."

"No one wants that. Authority of Congress."

"Now we come to the question as to how much authority Congress should have in the matter of repeal, since this unquestionably is a matter of national scope and character."

"Ardent prohibitionists struggled at Chicago to give Congress the right to prohibit as well as regulate the liquor traffic throughout the country."

"The more moderate school of thought declined to grant Congress the power to prohibit, declaring that power belonged to the states alone. At the same time they believed that the logical thing to do was to lodge in Congress the power to provide a general regulation of the traffic which would be uniform throughout the country, rather than have from four to 48 conflicting liquor laws agitating the country, the states to regulate the details."

"Therefore the platform gave Congress the power to regulate, but denied it the power to prohibit."

"Thus the three great principles demanded by the so-called wets have been granted."

Dry Principles Maintained.
"On the other hand, two outstanding principles for which the most ardent prohibitionists stand are not denied them."

"First, the right of any state to continue prohibition within its own borders by the vote of its own people."

"Second—the right of all prohibition states to the protection of the Federal Government from outside shipments into dry states and other kindred abuses."

"And finally, the drys have the same right as the wets to vote on the question as to whether present conditions are to be continued or terminated. No fair-minded American will deny either side this right."

"Who those who fear that Congress will not give the people a fair regulatory statute, the answer is that if three-fourths of the states of the Union, which means four-fifths of the American people repeal the eighteenth amendment and declare in favor of a reasonable substitute Congress will not dare deny them a reasonable remedy."

DEAF MUTE BEING TRIED
FOR KILLING OF ANOTHERState Completes Its Case in Kansas City Hearing Conducted in Sign Language.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 22.—Although slowed up by the necessity of rewording questions at times to fit in the sign language, the state completed its case yesterday of the trial of Norman D. Hunt, 39 years old, a deaf mute, on a charge of killing Louis Coleman, 34, also a deaf mute.

About half of the courtroom spectators were deaf mutes. At one time, the Court reprimanded one of them for applauding and threatened to have the woman removed from the courtroom. Thinking he had commented favorably to the defendant, she was on the point of renewing her applause when informed by an interpreter of the Judge's comment.

The defense said the shooting of Coleman by Hunt was admitted, but contended that Hunt's mind went blank at the time because he thought Coleman was associating with Mrs. Hunt. Hunt once held positions as supervisor of boys at schools for the deaf at Olathe, Kan., and Fulton, Mo.

George S. True sought. Mrs. Catherine True, 2633 Howard street, has asked police to search for her husband, George S. True, a chauffeur for the city water department, who did not return home Monday morning after going to City Hall to get a pay check. She described him as being 36 years old and about 6 feet tall.

TWO MILK TRUCKS
HALTED BY ARMED MEN AND WRECKEDDrivers in Illinois Are Forced to Empty 1000
Bottles and Throw Butter
Into Ditch.

Two trucks carrying milk of the Edwardsville Creamery Co. to several East St. Louis stores were held up early today by three armed men who forced the drivers to spill the milk and then fired machine gun bullets into the radiators and tires of the trucks.

As the first truck, owned and driven by Elmer Turner, and his brother, Lester, rounded a curve on Illinois highway No. 157 a mile north of Maryville at 4:30 a. m., a sedan with three men in it, one standing on the running board with a sawed-off shotgun, pulled alongside from the side of the road.

"The man waved his gun at me and made me stop," Turner said, "then he made my brother and myself get into the back of our truck. He got behind the wheel and turned the truck around. Another fellow with two automatic pistols guarded us. The other man, who had a machine gun, drove the sedan after us."

After they had proceeded toward Edwardsville about half a mile, they met the other milk truck, owned and driven by E. H. Westwood. It was halted and Westwood made to follow the first truck into a side road.

There the drivers were forced to empty about 1000 quart and pint bottles of milk, wash the bottles and throw a small quantity of butter in a ditch.

"After we had smashed the bottles," Turner said, "the man with the machine gun stood in front of the trucks and fired a shot through each radiator. Then he went around to the back and put a bullet in three tires of each truck. Then they got in the car and drove away. It was getting light by that time so we walked to the highway and caught a ride to Edwardsville."

Martin Jensen, president of the creamery, said he had had no trouble previously and could assign no reason for the hold-up "unless someone is dissatisfied by modern methods of selling."

Both of the truck drivers, Jensen said, are members of a drivers' union.

"SIX CYLINDERS no more-no less" says America

Since Jan. 1st, buyers have chosen more Chevrolet Sixes than the combined total of all fours and all eights priced below $1000

Look at what happened when America began lifting hoods and counting cylinders: Overwhelming preference for "SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No less." A sweeping endorsement of the soundness and correctness of the Chevrolet six-cylinder engine!

America knows its motor cars. And America knows you can't get around these facts about cylinders in a low-priced car: That six is the largest number you can have and still get unexcelled economy! That six is the fewest you can have and still get built-in smoothness! And who wants to sacrifice either of these great factors of motoring satisfaction?

America prefers the Chevrolet Six—because it strikes a happy medium between two extremes. It gives economy—the lowest operating and upkeep cost of any American car, as proved by the experience of tens of thousands of owners! It gives smoothness—the built-in smoothness that makes driving really comfortable, effortless, enjoyable! And it gives many other advantages just as essential and important as six cylinders. Advantages that no other low-priced car can match.

That matchless combination—Free Wheeling and Syncro-Mesh—for quick, quiet, effortless shifting and positive car control. A dependable chassis, whose basic design has been proved in the hands of millions of satisfied owners.

Such features of riding-comfort as four parallel-mounted springs, four hydraulic shock absorbers, adequate weight and correct balance!

And new reduced prices—as much as $50 and $55 lower than they were before!

Chevrolet is able to give this value, because Chevrolet is the world's largest producer of motor cars. Largest for three out of the past five years! Largest for the first six months of 1932! First in value—First in sales!

SCHMELING FORCES GOING; 65,000 BOO THE DECISION

By John E. Wray.

SPORTS EDITOR OF THE POST-DISPATCH. NEW YORK, June 22.—Jack Sharkey's friends today are giving him a pat on the back; but there is a fairly large army of others who contend that all he deserves is a kick to the same region. Jack's friends, supported by one judge and the referee, maintain that he won the world's championship from Max Schmeling last night at the brand-new dugout bowl of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, after 15 rounds; but a vocal vote of the 65,000 persons present did not seem to echo endorsement of this view. Neither did the majority view of the experts at ringside.

As a matter of fact, from the viewpoint of this writer, who may take the liberty of mentioning that he has seen all the great championship bouts of the last 15 years, it wasn't a fight at all, much less a world's championship fight. Without doubt, there has not in the history of the heavyweight championship been a feebler display of fighting than that which Sharkey gave in his final and successful effort to win the title. It is a shame to say this, but it is a fact that Sharkey was not by virtue of his fighting qualities.

Fight Without a Thrill. The event, which surprised everybody by attracting a near capacity crowd of 65,000 was almost without a thrill. Those who remembered the previous meeting of the men, and recalled the savage manner in which Sharkey manhandled his German foe, were amazed by the weak showing the American made.

Accepting the defensive from the start, pursued by the steadily plodding German for the entire 15 rounds, Sharkey gave the impression of being afraid. He thrust a powerless left into Schmeling's face round after round while going away. He hardly delivered a solid blow even to be outboxed by Schmeling's improved left-hand fighting, and at times he was driven to bay and battered with Schmeling's right.

In the final round he made a feeble rally without hurting anybody, but the onlookers' opinion of his fighting qualities. The bout closed without his having struck a blow that could by any chance be called damaging.

Schmeling Does All the Damage. There was no knockdown on either side, but all the damage done was by Schmeling, who closed Sharkey's fight with a series of blows.

How Referee and Two Judges Scored the Bout. The score sheet of the three judges for Sharkey, M for Schmeling, E for even.

Mathison: 1-3, 2-M, 3-M, 4-M, 5-3, 6-3, 7-3, 8-M, 9-M, 10-M, 11-M, 12-M, 13-M, 14-M, 15-M.

Smith: 1-2, 2-3, 3-3, 4-3, 5-3, 6-3, 7-3, 8-M, 9-E, 10-M, 11-E, 12-M, 13-12, 14-E, 15-3.

Johnston, boxing promoter for the Garden, said he had no plans for a return meeting between Schmeling and Sharkey, but would let Schmeling pick his own opponent from among Mickey Dwyer, Ernie Schaaf or any other leading heavyweight for a fight this summer or early fall.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., June 22.—Jimmy Manion of St. Louis eliminated Kusto Carter of Oklahoma City, 6 up and 5 to play, in the first round of the Trans-Mississippi golf tournament here today.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., June 22.—Jimmy Manion of St. Louis followed Manion into the second round when he eliminated E. S. Hansberger, Oklahoma City, 3 and 2. Cochrane was one up after the first nine after sinking a 40-yard chip shot for an eagle on No. 8.

E. J. Rogers, Oklahoma City, open and amateur champion, advanced at the expense of Bryan Winter, St. Louis star, 3 and 2. Rogers was 2 up after the first nine.

First Round Results.

F. A. Boid, Wichita, defeated John Falcner, Kansas City, 2 holes 1.

Paul Jackson, Kansas City, won from Lucas Van Zandt, Tulsa, 5-3.

James Manion, St. Louis, defeated Kusto Carter, Oklahoma City, 6-3.

Ben Cowdery, Omaha, eliminated Leonard Summers, Oklahoma City, 3-1.

Charles F. Mathison, veteran of the three, gave Schmeling 10 rounds and Sharkey five; George Kelly, the other judge, gave Sharkey eight rounds and Schmeling three.

The referee, called five rounds even, gave Sharkey seven and Schmeling only three.

The score sheet of the three judges for Sharkey, M for Schmeling, E for even.

Mathison: 1-3, 2-M, 3-M, 4-M, 5-3, 6-3, 7-3, 8-M, 9-M, 10-M, 11-M, 12-M, 13-M, 14-M, 15-M.

Sharkey Lands a Right in First Round

James M. Gould.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, June 22.—The Browns defeated the New York Yankees this afternoon, for their only victory in the three games played.

The score was 17 to 10.

Eddie Grimes, the Browns' utility infielder, will be out of the game for two or three weeks with a badly sprained left ankle. Grimes, running for Bengough in the eighth inning of yesterday's game, scored the run which temporarily tied the score. After crossing the plate, he stumbled and fell, injuring his ankle.

A crowd of 2500 witnessed the game.

The game:

SPECTATORS WAIT IN VAIN FOR AMERICAN TO START AN ATTACK; REFEREE CASTS DECIDING VOTE

key's left eye and had him bleeding slightly at the nose in the later rounds. Considering that he outweighed Schmeling 17 pounds (153 to 165) and that it was his final chance to restore a reputation already under suspicion, the new champion made, in this writer's opinion, a disastrous failure in winning.

The picture Sharkey's corner presented after the close of the fifteenth round and while waiting for the votes of the two judges and the referee to be collected indicated the uncertainty of Sharkey and his supporters. Johnny Buckley, his manager, Tony Palozzo and Sharkey himself stood around trying to look confident and, as one writer expressed it, looking like a poker player with a pair of deuces waiting to be called by four aces.

Joe Humphrey, announcer for a couple of generations of championship fights, plucked the slips from the hands of the judges and the referee. He stopped toward Sharkey's corner, then turned away. The poker faces fell, but they were all illuminated a moment later when Joe announced: "A new champion. A new American champion." and the rush of the Sharkey contingent into the ring ended the announcement. To make the decision more clear, he stepped over and raised Sharkey's hand.

Sharkey supporters climbed into the ring and began a demonstration. Over in Schmeling's corner, things were not so bright. But there was no revolt against the decision. Schmeling, not too downcast and certainly shedding no tears, walked over to Jack and shook his hand. What was said the ringiders could not hear. But the German took what many considered the worst of it gracefully.

The fight by rounds discloses that Schmeling, according to this writer's count, had a margin of eight rounds to four for Sharkey, with three even. Most of the rounds, however, were inconsequential and their margins inconclusive, insofar as any actual damage was concerned.

The bout was beautifully clean and there was not the semblance of a serious foul committed, although each man hit below the waist line light blows on one or two occasions.

It was an entirely different Sharkey from the one this writer has seen in four previous fights—against McGuire, Stribling, Dempsey and Schmeling—two years ago.

In three of the battles above mentioned, Sharkey was undoubtedly a dangerous factor. He was a vicious puncher and carried the fight. He stopped McGuire—and that was in an elimination for a championship. He gave Dempsey a terrific beating for five rounds, and his battle and had the mighty one almost out. He beat Stribling, although that fight was not one of his good ones; but against Schmeling, in his first encounter, he almost wrecked the German in three rounds.

Sharkey Steps Away.

Ringiders who remembered these battles were amazed at Sharkey's display last night. Apparently determined to protect himself, all costs, Sharkey began by stepping away from Schmeling and flicking his left glove out at him as the German advanced.

Schmeling accepted the invitation. He pursued Sharkey constantly. He, too, adopted different tactics. The German stood straight up and boxed Sharkey, matching his own left with Sharkey's. He usually equaled Jack, and at times even bettered him. In this, also, he stood ready to trade with Sharkey and launched hard rights at him as his foe backed around. But it was seldom Sharkey would halt to exchange with Max.

Observers said to one another, as round after round ended: "Now Sharkey will cut loose," but round after round Sharkey continued the same safety-first fighting. Either he could not touch the best, as he had been accustomed to, or he had determined that he could win on the scoring of mere lightweight points.

It was not until the fifteenth round that apparently his corner sent him out to try to make a real showing. In this round he set sail with both hands, but in the end he accomplished nothing.

Referee Casts Deciding Vote.

Judge George Kelly and Referee Gunboat Smith, who voted him the victor over the minority report of that capable veteran, Judge Charles F. Mathison, must have considered that he won in the language of the "Iron Chancellor" of long ago as he accomplished nothing.

Jack Sharkey was receiving congratulations in his dressing room following his winning of the world title last night, he said:

"It was a long, hard trip up. At last, after eight years my ambition has been realized. I am returning to Boston, the new heavyweight champion of the world.

"Schmeling was very hard to fight. I was discouraged many times during those 15 rounds, but I kept right in there and I didn't blow up either.

"Sharkey said he would be willing to give Schmeling a return fight, 'any time there is some money in it.' He said, however, that he took the fight for his training expense and that Schmeling would

16 of 28 Experts Outspoken in Favor Of Max Schmeling

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 22.—The reaction to the championship victory of Jack Sharkey shows the city divided between those who think Sharkey beat Schmeling and others who think that all he beat was a strategic retreat.

Some of the experts saw Jack's showing as a masterful boxing exhibition. Others called it a pitiful display by one who hoped for championship recognition. In the poll of 28 newspaper writers from various sections of the country, nine favored Schmeling, two were non-committal, one thought a draw was OK and the others outspokenly thought Schmeling had won.

The prevailing opinion is summed up in the thought that "you can't win a fight by running away."

"If there was a fatal mistake made it was in the Schmeling camp," one expert comments. "His advisers coached him to try to outbox Sharkey when all he knew was to do so."

In any case the show will go down into history as the world's "powderpuff" championship.

Had this fight been put on in the Coliseum at St. Louis and the men been called by other names, the crowd would have booed plenty.

The singular feature of last night's battle was the patience with which the crowd viewed this "struggle" between two men supposed to represent the world's greatest fighting talent.

We can only observe that if this is really our best fighting talent, then the $13 bet should come down to $2.50.

Climaxes Career of Failures.

What will happen to the championship, now that Sharkey has it, is not for us to guess. Sharkey's success comes as the climax to a career of failure. It was his third attempt to make good for the title. And true to his career, he failed with the greatest of all the many surprises he has given the country—that of winning the championship with his poorest display.

The only thing creditable we find in Sharkey's performance is that he showed his head and pursued faithfully to its end his plan of battle—if you can call it by that heroic name.

GUS BOEHMER BEATS CLIFFORD IN CLAYTON TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Play in the Clayton tennis championship opened yesterday afternoon on the municipal courts at Ladue and Price roads. The tournament was scheduled to start Monday, but was delayed by wet weather. With two exceptions, all first-round matches were completed during the afternoon.

While there were no upsets in the first round, several contests were closely played. Gus Bohmer, St. Louis University and Triple A player, was given a warm battle by Clark Clifford, former Washington U. player. Bohmer took the first set, 6-3, but Clifford forced the second to 7-5 before losing.

"Ambition Realized," Sharkey; Schmeling Wants Another Bout

NEW YORK, June 22.—While Jack Sharkey was receiving congratulations in his dressing room following his winning of the world title last night, he said:

"It was a long, hard trip up. At last, after eight years my ambition has been realized. I am returning to Boston, the new heavyweight champion of the world.

"Schmeling was very hard to fight. I was discouraged many times during those 15 rounds, but I kept right in there and I didn't blow up either.

"Sharkey said he would be willing to give Schmeling a return fight, 'any time there is some money in it.' He said, however, that he took the fight for his training expense and that Schmeling would have to do the same if they met again.

Max Schmeling, baffled and disconsolate, sat in his dressing room after the fight, trying to figure how he had lost the world title. Schmeling said:

"If some one beats me, I don't care, I say. The better man wins, and that is all right. But how can Sharkey beat me running away all the time?"

"Sharkey was only playing with his punches. Never did he hurt me. Only a few times I hit him hard, but I know he is hurt. I feel I beat him, but he gave me the decision."

"Well, I am a young fellow. I have plenty of time. I fight Sharkey again."

The Passing Show.

THE N. L. race is waxing hot. And every team it seems has got a chance to win the flag. We saw the team that beats the Cubs.

And six or seven other clubs. The trophy ought to bag.

Although the Cubs are going fast. The Red Sox now are running last.

Are strictly in the race; And clubs that now are going grand. May lose a game or two and land in eighth or seventh place.

The New York Giants, so I see. Have optioned Leonard Koenek. Their costly young recruit. Which only means the same old tale.

The minors made a clever sale—The

SCHULTE MEETS IRWIN STREIBEL IN BOUT TONIGHT

Les Schulte, former National A.

Les Schulte, former National A. U. junior heavyweight champion, and Irwin Streibel, newly crowned Mississippi Valley A. U. heavyweight monarch, will draw tonight in the feature attraction on the Valley organization's boxing card at the Battery A open-air arena. Matchmaker George Wislizenus arranged for the five special bouts to be supported by five or six preliminaries. Fifty fighters have filed signed entry blanks.

The district junior middleweight champion, Tommy Ryan, coached by Herbert Ryan, will meet the district junior light-heavyweight champion, George Smith, in a star battle. Ryan, who has put on weight recently, is punching harder than ever, while Nichols has won nearly all his scraps in the kayo round.

Huff, who is one of the city's most promising scrappers, opposed the toughest foe he has met in two years. Huff was recently returned from winning eight straight titles in and around Chicago.

SPECIAL MATCHES.

Irvin School, South Broadway A. C., vs. Le Scheulte, Business Men's Gymnasium; Elmer Sherman Park C. A. vs. Johnny Nichols, National A. A. Lions; Joe Huff, E. K. A. C., vs. George Biehl, National A. A. Lions; and weights, Sam Paschoff, Bellville, Ill., vs. Farrel Moore, Jefferson A. C., Waterbury; and weights, Morris Cooper, National A. A., Waterbury vs. Charlie Bushoff, Bellville, Ill., weight.

PUBLIC WORKS
SECTION OF RELIEF
BILL APPROVEDSenate Votes 57 to 19
Against Administration Move to Kill Provision for $500,000,000 Issue.MUST BE RECONCILED
WITH GARNER PLANSpeaker's Views Given—Johnson Says Administration Wants Adjournment Without Action.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The $500,000,000 public works bond issue section of the Wagner (Dem.) relief bill, to which President Hoover has been opposed, was approved today by the Senate.

An administration move by Senator Moses (Rep.) New Hampshire, to eliminate the bond issue section was beaten 57 to 19.

A vote was reached with only a half hour of debate, as the Republican and Democratic leaders observed a voluntary agreement to limit debate.

Despite the hint of a presidential veto from Senator Moses, a number of administration Senators voted for the bond issue. The Democrats were almost solid for it, together with Western independent Republicans.

The Senate then began consideration of an amendment by Senator La Follette (Rep.), Wisconsin, to increase the bond issue from $500,000,000 to $550,000,000.

A troublesome conference with the House is in prospect, to reconcile the Senate's bill with the Garner $2,500,000,000 measure, which has been bitterly denounced by President Hoover.

Garner told newspaper men today he considered his relief bill simply broad to meet conditions in Chicago as described here yesterday by Mayor Anton Cermak. "My bill was designed to help just Chicago," Garner said. "But it will help all the people. It increases the capitalization of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by $500,000,000 and broadens the base of loans from the Atlantic to the Pacific. All that is required is adequate security. The rest of the details are left in the hands of the Reconstruction Board."

An amendment to the relief bill to increase from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 the amount provided for loans for financing exportation of agricultural products was rejected today. It was sponsored by Senator Connally (Dem.), Texas.

The Senate then rejected, 35 to 33, an amendment by Senator Black (Dem.), Alabama, to eliminate from the bill $40,000,000 for disposing of agricultural surpluses abroad.

The Senate agreed without a dissenting vote to a proposal by Senator Ashurst (Dem.), Arizona, to eliminate from the measure provisions for setting up an industrial commission of 19 members to act as advisers in carrying out the bill's program.

May Run Into Next Week.

Congress now expects to remain in session until the middle of next week, through at least part of the Democratic National Convention, which opens in Chicago Monday.

The Senate voted yesterday against a night session, 38 to 32. Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, remarked it would be impossible to adjourn by Saturday, and others held the same idea. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, had hoped to get to the convention and proposed an agreement to limit debate after this evening. This move was voted down today.

Farm Board Stocks.

Debate resulted when Senator Black moved elimination of the provision to allocate to the Secretary of Agriculture $40,000,000 for financing sales of agricultural products abroad. He contended the provision was designed to enable the Farm Board to sell its stocks of wheat and cotton resulting from its price stabilization efforts and argued this would tend to reduce the world price.

Senator Norbeck (Rep.), South Dakota, opposing elimination, said it was intended to dispose of the Farm Board's wheat surplus.

"As I said some time ago," remarked Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, "if I had my way, I would want to ship that (Farm Board) wheat to China and give it to them. It would be infinitely better for the farmers of the country."

Senator Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, said the provision was in the bill for the purpose of enabling the Farm Board to creep out of a hole it ought not to have gotten into."

Saying the section provided for supplying wheat and cotton to foreigners who are unable to pay for them, Senator Glenn (Rep.), Illinois, asserted the surplus stocks might be used to feed and clothe the needy of America.

Black asserted the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was "communism spread wide down because it taxes a great many people in order to

WHAT DEMOCRATS CAN DO TO GAIN ADVANTAGE
ON PROHIBITION QUESTIONRepeal Plank Would Alienate Party's Own Drys; Resubmission Declaration Would Not
and Besides Might Gain G. O. P. Wet VotesBy CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 22.—Democratic leaders have prised what seems to them the strategic advantage of writing their prohibition plank after the Republicans have spoken, and that they now do in their effort to score off the Republicans at the very outset of the campaign on the most contentious issue of the day? The question is of equal interest with question of who will be their candidate for the presidency.

The Democrats can do one of four things. First, they can write a noncommittal plank as they did at Houston and thereby place the party on the dry side. In all the speculation on the subject this course is ruled out. The events which have operated in the last six months to drive the Republican party out from under the domination of the Anti-Saloon League have worked with equal force upon the Democratic party. As political opportunism through long years demanded dryness in the platform, so now it demands wetness. It is a safe prophecy that the Democratic plank will be, in some measure yet to be determined, a wet plank.

Second, the Democrats can follow the example of the Republicans and adopt a "state option under Federal control" plank. But if they did this, or adopted any other kind of obviously straddling plank, they would lose all the political advantage which the Republicans have thrust into their hands. They have heard the denunciation heaped upon the Republican plank by both sides—the militant, forthright wets of the Nicholas Murray Butler type, and now by Senator Borah as a spokesman of the drys. Apparently nobody likes the Chicago compromise except the little group of men who framed it.

No, the Democrats will seek to avoid the charge of straddling the issue. The possibility of a plank on the Republican lines can be dismissed.

Secret Repeal Plank Unlikely.

Third, the Democrats can declare for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. This is what the wets, pressing for the greatest possible gain for the repeal cause, have said they would do. They have said that a warring wet plank, unqualifiedly putting the party on record for repeal, would carry the wet Eastern States and insure the election of the Democratic nominee. But no matter how heavily this argument might weigh with a section of the party, it appears unlikely that the party platform will come out for repeal.

The fourth course open to the Democrats is to propose a repeal amendment without committing the party to repeal.

Now there is a great difference, in politics, between a plank saying that we favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and a plank saying that we favor submitting the repeal question to the decision of the states. The Butler-Bingham plank at the Republican convention, as Senator Bingham emphasized in his speech to the convention, did not seek to commit the benefit a few taxpayers who can borrow from it."

In a statement off the floor, Senator Johnson (Rep.), California, charged that the administration is seeking to force an adjournment of Congress before a relief bill is passed. He said to newspaper men:

"If Congress adjourns without some measure of relief for our people who are suffering, Congress will deserve the exhortation which undeserving propaganda has heaped upon it and any individual who refuses to do his utmost to obtain a measure of relief for the unemployed and suffering humanity is recreant to his trust."

"It seems to be obvious to me that the administration is seeking to force an adjournment before we pass a relief measure and those with a due sense of the obligation resting upon them and who have the slightest conception of the conditions affecting human beings in this country ought to resent it."

Senator Trammel (Dem.), Florida, proposed an amendment for paying 50 per cent of the face value of certificates to veterans who now can borrow half on them.

A veteran could ask for cash payment at any time prior to July 1, 1934. Treasury notes, as provided in the recently defeated $2,400,000,000 cash bonus bill, would be issued to pay the certificates. A reduction to 2 per cent in the interest rate on loans also is sought.

CHOLERA EPIDEMIC IN CHINA

HONGKONG, June 22.—Nearly 200 new cases of cholera are being reported each day in South China, and 75 per cent of the cases are proving fatal. There was no cholera at Hongkong, but the epidemic was reported especially bad in Canton.

SWING WON'T FILE
FOR SENATORSHIP;
ASSAILS STRADDLECalifornia Representative Says He Finished His Job
in Getting Boulder Dam Under Way.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Representative Phil D. Swing (Rep.), California, announced in a formal statement today he would not file as a candidate for the Senate.

Swing also condemned "the wet-dry straddle plank of my party's platform." He said:

"I shall not file for United States Senator. I have never desired merely to hold office. I did not go to Congress because of political ambition, but to do a definite job—that of putting over the Boulder Dam project."

"With that object accomplished by the enactment of the Swing-Johnson bill, with the work under way, with appropriations made by Congress to keep construction going, I had planned to return to the practice of my profession."

Disapproves "Straddle."

"However, some of the leading citizens of Southern California met last November and urged me to run for the Senate, and I consented. It was my intention to make a fight for progressive principles, demanding that the Federal Government take aggressive and direct action to attack the grave economic problems which threaten our economic and political institutions."

"However, since that time the propaganda against prohibition has risen to distract the attention of the people with its contention that repeal is the remedy for our present ills."

"My convictions are to the contrary. I am a Republican, but I cannot approve the wet-dry straddle plank of my party's platform."

"Neither can I approve its disavowal of Federal responsibility for action to relieve the unemployment situation nor its declaration restricting relief to palliative measures which do not go to the root or the cause of the present depression."

Can't Afford Campaign.

"Furthermore, it became evident that without strong newspaper support in the big cities, a steerable campaign fund is necessary, no matter what the candidate's merit, ability or record for accomplishment might be. I found myself unable conscientiously to cast the votes necessary to secure the support of the party, and unfortunately my 12 years of public service to the State has left me a poor man."

"Under these circumstances there remains nothing for me to do but to announce my withdrawal and at the same time extend my sincere thanks to my friends for their loyal efforts in my behalf and their offer of continued support should I have stayed in the race."

URGES HOUSE TO BEGIN WORK
AT ONCE ON DRY SUBMISSIONCongressman Andrews Says G. O. P.
Platform at Least Favors Such Action.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—After stating that "the Republican platform declared at least for submission and that Democratic platform will declare at least for submission," Representative Andrews (Rep.), New York, today urged the House to act immediately to submit prohibition to the people.

"What is to prevent working on it now and not waiting six months more?" Andrews shouted, drawing applause from both sides of the aisle.

Andrews began by referring to the thousands of bonus seekers camping in Washington and said some of their leaders had come out against prohibition.

"I want every man in that outfit to know how every state voted on the prohibition question," he said.

Andrews then read the numerical division of votes cast in the House by Representatives from Southern states from which most of the strength for the cash bonus bill came.

"I want these men to write their Congressmen and tell them to vote for submission," he said.

COURT GRANTS INTERVENTION
IN INSULL RECEIVERSHIPGives Note and Preferred Stock Holder Repeal in Midwest Utilities Case.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 22.—The Federal Circuit Court granted representation today to holders of notes and preferred stock in the friendly receivership proceedings involving the Midwest Utilities Co. key to Samuel Insull's shattered business chain.

District Judge Walter C. Lindley, who ordered the receivership and an audit several weeks ago, granted permission to intervene to the Charles S. Dewey committee of noteholders, represented by Attorney Robert N. Golding, and the C. Frederick Childs committee of preferred stockholders, represented by the law firm of Cutting, Moore & Sidley.

Similar arguments by counsel for individual holders of common stock nettled the court.

"There is no necessity for the entire population of Chicago and the Middle West to join in this litigation," he said, "or to call them in to tell this court what to do. Each noteholder does not have to be in court unless somebody fails to do his duty. It is the duty of the court and the receivers to protect everyone holding an interest in this company."

SENATE VOTES MEDAL
FOR AMELIA EARHARTDistinguished Service Award for Solo Flight Across Atlantic Ocean.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The Senate today passed and sent to the White House a bill conferring the distinguished service medal on Amelia Earhart Putnam for her solo conquest of the Atlantic.

Still modestly protesting that it was "too great an honor," Mrs. Putnam last night received from President Hoover the sixteenth gold medal of the National Geographic Society, the only such medal ever given to one of her sex.

With it, she received as well a commendation for her courage, her modesty and good humor, plus "ability to accomplish the most difficult tasks that she set herself to do."

The President went even further:

"All these things combine to place her in spirit with the great pioneering women to whom every generation of Americans has looked up, with admiration for their firmness of will, their strength of character and their cheerful spirit of a comradeship in the work of the world."

But Mrs. Putnam herself refused to admit to this high merit, insisting she had really done nothing for aviation and that her feat was a "gesture of personal satisfaction."

The presentation climaxed a day of high honors. She had stood on the floor of the Senate—rare privilege for man or woman—and shaken hands with members who were lavish in congratulations.

From a gallery she received the cheers and applause of the House. She lunched with the officers of the Geographic Society and dined with the President and Mrs. Hoover.

Fighting took place in Berlin, Cologne, Wandsbeck, near Hamburg, Frankfurt-am-Main, Andernach, Varel, Kiel and other towns. A student riot resulted at Frankfurt when National Socialist uniforms appeared on the university campus.

A navy parade at Kiel, commemorating the scuttling of the German fleet at the Scapa Flow after the war 13 years ago, was canceled because of the street fighting there.

Hitlerites hammered police with iron rods at Cologne.

The Cabinet today struggled with the problem of keeping its peace with Hitler. He demands that his "storm troops" be permitted to wear their uniforms throughout Germany despite the police of the states. The states insist that the Reich Constitution gives them the power to put down all movements

ALEXANDER WINTON, AUTO PIONEER, DIES

He Is Credited With Being
First Commercial Manufacturer of Automobiles.

By the Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, June 22.—Alexander Winton Sr., who was generally known as the first commercial manufacturer of an automobile, and at his home here last night at the age of 72. He had been ill two weeks.

Long before the world dreamed of the automobile, Winton was building cars in a little Cleveland factory and his first automobile was running on the streets of this city as early as 1895.

By 1903, while the infant industry was still generally confined to "one-runners" and "two-runners," according to the number of cylinders, Winton had built an eight-cylinder racing car, which he entered and drove that year in the James Gordon Bennett Cup race in Ireland.

In those days an automobile still looked like a demoniacal monster to many people, and Winton lost the race, he said later, because someone put candles in the gasolene tank to "keep away the devils."

Winton accumulated a large fortune in succeeding years, much of which he spent in wide and successful experiments for improvements. For many years his Cleveland factory manufactured automobiles, but he suspended this business in 1924.

Although several other inventors made and operated automobiles before Mr. Winton, he was generally known as the first to manufacture them for sale.

One of the pioneer's favorite stories of the early days of the industry concerned the first automobile trip ever made from Cleveland to New York, and its demoralizing effect on sundry horses and horsemen. That was in 1897. Driving a two-cylinder car, Winton was approaching Painesville, O., when two horses, taking fright, tore loose from the wagon and bolted over a fence, leaving the wagon overturned with its occupants beneath, unhurt but very much disgruntled over the manufacturer's "conspired contraption."

At the summit of the Peckskill Mountains Winton encountered a horse-drawn buggy containing a young couple, "parked" beside the highway. Again the automobile caused equine alarm. Giving a sudden jump, the horse pulled all the spokes from the buggy's wheels, setting the floor of the carriage down in the dust.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

An important wedding of the early summer season took place yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, when Miss Eleanor Hobbitzelle, 6450 Ellenwood avenue, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George K. Hobbitzelle, became the bride of Henry Hitchcock, son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Hitchcock, 5363 Waterman avenue. The ceremony took place at the Church of the Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Brock officiating. A reception in the garden of the Hobbitzelle home followed.

Miss Trimble Hobbitzelle was her sister's maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Kay Day, Miss Elsie White, Miss Eleanor Trask and Miss Sally Taylor, debutantes of this season and Miss Mary Francis Day and Miss Jane King of Atlanta, Ga. Ethel Allen Hitchcock was the bride's best woman, and the groomsmen included J. Sheppard Smith, Albert Bond Lambert Jr., Arthur B. Shepley, a cousin of the bridegroom; Charles Murphy of Detroit, Earl Goodwin of Chicago and Charles Harvey of Lake Forest, Ill.

The altar, banked at either side with palms and ferns was lighted by ivory tapers. Tall branched candelabra filled with more of the tapers illuminated the chancel which was adorned with two standards of white daisies.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Harrison Hobbitzelle of Philadelphia, formed a long train. The bridesmaids wore a square neckline and there were long sleeves of the lace. She wore a short veil of tulle held in place by a tulle cap and carried a long train. The bride's gown was a square neckline and there were long sleeves of the lace. # PERCIVAL CHUBB PLANS TO RETIRE

Will Give Up Ethical Society Leadership After Year Spent Abroad.

Percival Chubb, leader of the Ethical Society, has announced his purpose to retire from that position after his return from a year of travel and study, which began recently. In a letter to the members of the society he writes: "My sabbatical year is to prepare the way for my retirement. I owe that to you. I am past the established limit in years (he is 72) and I would not lend color to the notion that the Ethical Society is a home for the aged. The public have a way of confusing the aged with the infirm. However, I shall retire again, and be ready to serve you further according to the needs of the situation. Then I shall have to tidy house for my successor, and put my legacy in order."

Dislikes to Retire Now. "Convinced as I am that my retirement is needed for the interests of the Ethical Society and its future, I nevertheless deplore that it should fall at this crisis in national and human affairs. Mentally speaking, I do not feel like retiring. The situation is too provocative and evocative."

"Never in my memory has there been a time when the contribution which the Ethical Movement may make toward the common welfare and deliverance has been so convincingly called for. Of the ethical implications of the collapse of capitalism I will not speak. Not only Karl Marx, but the prophets and seers, persuaded me long since that it carried within it the seeds of its own destruction. The Great War announced its doom. If this profiteers' game of greed and grab was to go on, then the earth was pillared rottenness. The war and the peace have together exposed the rottenness. Our resources of soundness are on trial."

The call upon religion to divest itself of its accretions of irrelevancy and to address itself to the task of promoting plain righteousness, yes, just simple honesty and integrity. In these all spiritual values are rooted. The contemporary exhibitions of corruption in business and politics, the brutalities of crime, the indecencies of self-indulgence, the vulgarities of popular pleasuring, all announce the withering of fundamental moral. And the absence of any widespread and agitating indignation and contrition is at once the handwriting on the wall that threatens ruin and the summons to a new way of life."

Chubb, who is a native of England, and was formerly a teacher of English in the Brooklyn schools, has been leader of the Ethical Society of St. Louis since 1911. He is a widower, and lives at 108 South Rock Hill road, Webster Groves.

CULBERTSON-OFFICIAL BRIDGE FEUD ENDED

Rivals Unite, but 'Four Horse-men' With System of Own Hold Out.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 21.—Two of the warring factions of contract bridge have made peace. A joint statement was issued today by Ely Culbertson, president of the Bridge World, Inc., and F. Dudley Courtney, president of Bridge Headquarters, Inc., announcing organization of the United States Bridge Association.

The new organization, to be formed along the same general lines as the United States Golf Association and United States Lawn Tennis Association, ends the bitter feud between Culbertson, sponsor of his own system of bidding, and the sponsors of the "official" system—a feud that resulted in the Culbertson-Lenz match last December and January.

The joint statement today said the new association would embrace all factions in the field of bridge, but there was no word of confirmation from the "Four Horsemen," who recently issued a challenge to all comers. The "Four Horsemen" are headed by P. Hal Sims, president of the Deal Club at Deal, N. J. Their recent challenge was believed to have been prompted by knowledge of the impending union between Culbertson and Bridge Headquarters.

The statement announced that an agreement had been reached whereby bidding systems of contract bridge have been standardized as closely as is desirable. "The Culbertson system remains unchanged," the statement continued. "The official system acknowledges most of the principles of the Culbertson system except for slight variations in the method of hand valuation. The official system retains the artificial two-club demand bid and the intermediate two-bid with the Culbertson forcing two-bid as an optional factor. With a view to making bidding systems more pliable, the next edition of Mr. Culbertson's contract bridge blue book will contain a chapter on the Culbertson system with the official variations including the artificial two-club bid, advocated by Mr. Culbertson as the next best thing.

"The one-over-one, when partly forcing, will continue to be used and recognized in its natural way as a constructive bid with its implications."

ENLARGED PROGRAM URGED FOR HANDICAPPED PERSONS

Claude E. Stephens Wants State to Take Advantage of Federal Rehabilitation Act.

Enlargement of the present program of rehabilitation of crippled persons in St. Louis was advocated last night by Claude E. Stephens, principal of the Elias Michael School for Crippled Children, in a speech over Radio Station WIL.

He said that the failure of the State Legislature to appropriate funds for rehabilitation has resulted in a loss to the State of a Federal appropriation of $39,000 annually since 1924. Missouri is one of four states which has not accepted the provisions of the Federal rehabilitation act.

Miss Julia Alsborg, director of the Red-Cross placement bureau, described the work of her organization in aiding the handicapped, who are being placed as bookkeepers, stenographers, beauty culture operators, optical mechanics, photographers, laboratory technicians, cobblers, electricians and automobile mechanics.

ELEANOR BOARDMAN AND KING VIDOR SEPARATED

Actress Says She Will Seek Divorce From Director and Custody of Daughters.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 22.—The Examiner publishes a copyrighted statement by Eleanor Boardman, movie actress, that she and her husband, King Vidor, director, have separated and that a divorce is imminent. Miss Boardman said she would ask for custody of their two small daughters.

Although their differences were not specified, it was known according to the Examiner, that relations have been strained for a year. They were married five years ago. The director formerly was the husband of Florence Vidor, now the wife of Jascha Heifetz, violinist.

STOCKS SEND MARKET SEASIDE AFTER LOWER PRICE TREND

Losses of 1 to 2 Points Are Substantially Reduced
and Turnover Is the Largest
So Far This Week.

STOCK PRICE TREND.
Wed. Tues.
Number of advances... 139 87
Number of declines... 108 133
Stocks unchanged... 108 133
Total issues traded... 456 447

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 22.—The stock market hardened somewhat in the late trading today, after U. S. Steel had refused to break through its low of 24 in a further decline during the earlier hours. Losses of 1 to 2 points were substantially reduced, and the list closed with a steady tone. The turnover of about 700,000 shares was the largest so far this week.

Stocks were probably helped by a late upturn in wheat. Bonds did not hold up as well as they have recently. Electric Power production figures also helped somewhat, but adverse influences were a further slackening of steel operations, dividend cuts and uncertainties, and prolongation of the session of Congress.

U. S. Steel met firm buying at its low of 24, and closed at 24 1/2, off 1/2 net. American Can was a soft spot, losing 1 point, and closing within a fraction of the bottom. American Telephone and Allied Chemical dropped more than a point, then recovered. Telephone went into new low ground, but gained virtually all of its loss. Among a few issues closing from fractions to a point higher were Public Service of N. J., Consolidated Gas, Corn Products, Case and General Motors.

Foreign currencies recovered somewhat as against the dollar, although the leading Europeans failed to get back to levels threatening gold withdrawals. The dollar was up 1/2 of one cent at 49.42 cents for cables, and smaller gains appeared in French Francs and sterling.

Comparative Electricity Output.
The slight improvement in electric power production in the past two weeks, measured as one of the more sensitive business barometers, has provided some encouragement. The situation has been somewhat obscured, however, by the pickup in some lines of business in an effort to move merchandise before the excise taxes became effective yesterday. Power production for the week ended Saturday showed a gain over the preceding week, the first time an upturn has been shown in that period since 1929. It was 10 1/2 per cent under 1921, as against 11 1/2 in the previous week.

While the freight car loadings as reported yesterday for all class 1 carriers for the week ended June 11, since they failed to recover the loss of the Memorial day week, were a little disappointing, reports for the week ended June 18 show further improvement. New York Central reported 36,105 cars, as increased from 24,443; Pennsylvania, 80,868, vs. 78,455; Louisville Terminal, 34,225, vs. 30,425.

Net Gain of $2,980,200 in Gold.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 22.—Gold transactions reported by the Federal Reserve Bank resulted in a net gain in this country's stocks of monetary metal of $2,980,200 today.
The amount of metal under " earmark " for foreign account decreased $9,010,400, but exports aggregated only $6,030,200, which presumably indicated that some metal which had been set aside for foreign account here was used to pay off foreign obligations in the country. All of the exported metal was for Switzerland, save $300,000, which was shipped to England.
These were the first important gold transactions this week.

'Change Houses to Merge.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 22.—Clark, Childs & Co. and F. B. Keech & Co., two large Wall Street brokerage firms, announced that they would merge, effective July 1.

Both are members of the New York Stock Exchange and have branches in several other cities. Clark, Childs & Co. has offices in New York, Akron, Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Flint, Mich.; South Bend, Ind., and several New York and New England cities.
F. B. Keech & Co. has offices in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Providence and Washington, D. C.
The two firms are among the older members of the Stock Exchange. The new company will be known as Clark, Childs & Keech.

STOCK LOANING PREMIUMS.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 22.—The following stocks were loaned at premium at the Lausanne conference, according to the report of the Lausanne conference on industrial and gold mine issues improved on light support. The closing was uncertain.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE.
By the Associated Press.
LONDON, June 22.—Trading on the stock exchange was quiet and irregular awaiting developments at the Lausanne conference. Predicting eased gilt-edged securities, oil and foreign shares, while industrial and gold mine issues improved on light support. The closing was uncertain.

PARIS, June 22.—Prices on the bourse showed indecision, pending result of the Lausanne conference. Fluctuations were narrow. French rents declined and international issues were slightly lower. Early gains registered in the Young loan were 76 cents.

The Sleep-Walkers' Marathon

The shuffling, shambling sleep-walkers drag themselves around the arena... the crowd howls... saxophones moan.

Exhausted Couples Stagger Around the Floor as Perspiring Crowds of Curious Spectators Cheer Them On—It's the Latest Craze in St. Louis Under the Head of "Entertainment."

PACE was signed in the summer of 1878. The following autumn we went to St. Petersburg to attend the wedding of my sister, Anastasia, to Friedrich, Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

It being my first trip to European Russia, I was naturally the most excited member of our party. Gazed at the window of the car I watched the endless panorama of the plains of Russia, so monotonous and distressing for a child raised in the vicinity of the snow-covered mountains and rapid rivers of the Caucasus. I did not like this strange country and refused to recognize it as my own.

The subdued faces of the peasants, the shabbiness of the villages, the dusty towns—twenty-four hours after our train pulled out of Vladivostok (where we arrived in carriages) I wanted to be back in "Dink." My disappointment did not escape father's attention.

"Do not judge Russia by the appearance of the provinces," he remarked after a long silence, "but tell me how you like the 1800 churches and St. Petersburg with its palaces."

I sighed deeply. I had heard so much about the Cathedral of the Kremlin and the luxury of the imperial court that I knew in advance I was not going to like it.

We were supposed to remain in Moscow just long enough to worship at the shrine of the miraculous icon of the Virgin Mary of Iverna and to visit the tomb of the saint buried in the Kremlin, being almost the official duty of every member of the imperial family by passing through the ancient capital of Russia.

The Imperial Chapel—a large, small structure—was thronged with some crowd of people anxious to see the powerful icon. The depressing smell of burning candles and the very uneasy voice of the priest reciting a short Te Deum rubbed me of all feelings supposed to be inspired by the sight of the miraculous icon. I did not believe that God would choose such surroundings to reveal Himself to his children. There was nothing Christian about the whole procedure. I rather suggested a sort of gloomy paganism. I had to pretend I was praying from fear of being punished, but I knew that my God, the God of golden fields, prime forests and melodious waterfalls, would never visit Tverskaya Chapel.

NEXT we drove to the Kremlin and had to kiss the brownish foreheads of numerous saints lying in state in silver coffins and wrapped in luxurious silver and gold tissues. An elderly monk dressed in black escorted us from coffin to coffin, raised their lids and pointing to us the exact spot we were expected to kiss. My head started to ache. One moment more in that stuffy atmosphere and I would have fainted.

I do not want to appear sacrilegious, nor am I trying to offend the fanatical followers of the Greek Orthodox Church; I am merely relating this episode in order to show what an awful impression this medieval performance left on the soul of the boy thinking of a religion of beauty and love. Since my first visit to Moscow and during the following 40 years spent in Russia I must have kissed the skulls of those saints. My head aches of times. On each occasion I suffered acutely and never experienced even an inkling of religious ecstasy. Today, at the age of 45, I am as fervent in my conviction that God should never be worshipped in the manner bequeathed to Christianity by the papacy.

The 400 miles between Moscow and St. Petersburg were being closely guarded by soldiers. All along the route we saw bayonets and uniforms; at night thousands of camp-fires were lighting the way. At first we thought it had been done in father's honor, but then we learned that the Emperor expected to visit Moscow in the near future and that extraordinary measures had been taken to protect his train against the attempts of the revolutionaries. This revelation struck us all most painfully. Things were coming to a pretty bad pass if the Czar of all the Russias had to be guarded every inch of the distance between his two capitals. It was a far cry from the days of his father, Nicholas I, who traveled practically unescorted throughout the wildest provinces of the empire; his father looked concerned and could not disguise his worry.

The morning of our arrival in St. Petersburg happened to coincide with the commencement of a period of dense pea-soup fog, which are likely to make even a Londoner gasp in despair. Lamps and candles were burning all over our palace. At midday it became so dark that I was not able to see the calling of my room.

"Yours is a particularly attractive room," explained my tutor, "When the fog lifts you will see the Fortress of Peter and Paul, where all the Czares are buried, right across the way."

My heart sunk. It was bad enough to be obliged to spend several months in this dark city, but to live in the neighborhood of dead bottles! Tears appeared in my eyes. How I did hate St. Petersburg on that morning. For that matter, I hated it all my life. Whenever I feel homesick for Russia, I wish I could see once more the Caucasus and the Crimean

In the two previous chapters of his story, the former Grand Duke Alexander, nephew of Czar Alexander II, told of his early childhood in Tiflis, where his father was a military training designed to fit him for service in the Russian army, where all of the male members of the House of Romanoff were expected to follow their careers and to avoid incidents from his memory of the outbreak of the Russian Turkish War.

Peninsula, but I sincerely hope I shall never again lay my eyes on the former capital of my ancestors.

I REMEMBER discussing the subject with my parents. Fond as they were of St. Petersburg, having spent there the first happy years of their married life, they could not blame me for remaining partial to the Caucasus. They recognized too that while the latter suggested harmony and content, the former evoked of imminent tragedy and continuous sorrow.

All large families suffer from the overlapping ambitions of its male members, and the Russian imperial family was no exception to this sour rule.

At the time of my first sojourn in St. Petersburg—the autumn of the year 1879—there were nearly two score young men in the family headed by Emperor Alexander II. The Czar himself had five sons: Alexander (the future Emperor Alexander III), Vladimir, Alexei, Sergei and Paul.

His brother Michael (my father) had six sons: Nicholas (usually referred to as Nicholas Michaelovich to distinguish him from his numerous namesakes in the family), Michael Michaelovich, George Michaelovich, myself, Sergei Michaelovich, and my infant brother, Alexei.

His other brother, Nicholas Nicholasovich, had two sons: "Nicholas" (Nicholas Nicholasovich, Jr.) who became commander-in-chief of the Russian army in 1914 and Peter.

But another brother of the Czar, Constantin Constantinovich, Dmitri Constantinovich, Nicholas Constantinovich and Wladimir.

The eldest two sons of the Czar, Alexander (then the heir apparent) and Vladimir, having married at an early age, had in their turn three sons each: Nicky (the future Czar Nicholas II), George Alexandrovich ("Georgie"), and Michael Alexandrovich, being born from the marriage of the heir apparent to the Danish Princess Dagmar; and Cyril, Boris and Andrew, the sons of Grand Duke Vladimir, constituting the youngest male trio of the imperial family.

With the natural exception of the heir apparent and his three sons whose future lay in the direction of the throne, the three young male Romanoffs expected to make a career in the army and anticipated strenuous competition from their own cousins. Hence, there were several "parties" in the family, the close relationship existing between us falling to prevent certain animosities. To begin with, we, the Caucasians, were inclined to keep aloof from the majority of the northerners. They suspected us of enjoying special favors from our imperial uncle; we accused them of ridiculous haughtiness. We five had our favorites and our "betes noires." We all liked Nicky and Georgie. We all distrusted Nicholas. The feud between my older brother Nicholas Michaelovich and the future commander-in-chief of the Russian army—dating far back to their first meeting, when both were still in their early teens—brought a sharp note of discord into the relations between the younger members of the imperial family; one had to decide whether one supported the tall Nicholas or whether one's sympathies were with the learned Nicholas Michaelovich.

Although a complete novice in St. Petersburg, I had passed severe judgment on the "enemy" of my older brother long in advance of our actual encounter in 1879, when I met him for the first time in my life at the Sunday family dinner in the Winter Palace I saw no reason to change my opinion.

THERE they sat, every one of my relatives, at the long table of our actual encounter in 1879, when I met him for the first time in my life at the Sunday family dinner in the Winter Palace I saw no reason to change my opinion.

"WHOOOOOOEEEEEE! That's the stuff, back up there! Come on, stand up, stand up! Don't let it get you down now! Whoooooeeeee!" Vocal chords vibrating to the maximum, a clatter and groan of cymbals and saxophones, a huge sweating, chattering, yelling, milling crowd of people, from infants in arms to grandmothers, several thousand of them, rapturous, three voices spilling incoherent songs into a "mike," a master-of-ceremonies wailing like a marionette on a string.

"What's the matter, going to let these kids down now? Come on, give 'em a hand; give 'em a big hand! All together!"

And there is another prolonged war cry, sporadic applause that quickly swells into hand-clapping. It gives a momentary impetus to the dazed activity of the group of couples in the rectangular ring in the center of the auditorium, a momentary impetus, and then the couples slump back into a heavy shuffling, shambling, dragging motion, some merely lifting their feet, setting them down again on the same spot, others slouching dully around the fence.

The sleep-walkers' parade is going on.

The hall is crowded, getting more crowded. The ushers move about busily, aggressively, trying to herd the fans of the "Walkathon Marathon." Big 24-Hour Show, Come in Any Old Hour, Entertainment, Vaudeville into a less jostling mass.

"Come on, folks, move over into the seats. Don't stand in the aisles, don't block the people who want to see it. Have to get out of the aisles. Against the fire regulations. If you're waiting for somebody, wait in back. Keep moving, please!"

The box seat ticket taker, perched high in a little box seat of his own, "Box seats"—two bits extra—wooden folding chairs in enclosures with chained entrances all around the steep walkways rectangular. General admission seats, tier on tier of plank all around the sides up to the very roof. Plenty of seats, if you want to climb. All the lower tiers filled.

"Pardon me, if I didn't mean to step on your feet." The victim pays no attention; a sleep-walker is hanging in his partner's arms. His partner who is a tall little girl herself half asleep is barely able to hold him with a desperate grip around the waist. The sleep-walker stumps, stumps, his knees near the floor—if the knees touch it counts a fall against him—she desperately nitches him up a notch, and the house raises the roof. What's a trol-on, too, anyway?

Hot. Horribly hot. Clothing wets, face and hands stream with moisture, palm leaf fans are everywhere, waving gently continuously, like a wheat field rippled by breeze. Shirt collars open, coats open, handkerchiefs wiping foreheads. A big night for the soda pop boys.

A loud blaring sound that finally, once one is seated, breaks in on the consciousness as a human voice. The master of ceremonies is at the dous body making him look much older than his 34 years; Grand Duke Vladimir, athletic, but rough; Grand Duke Alexei, the recognized "die-hard" of the family on account of his liberal political opinions.

And then our "enemy" Nicholas. The tallest man in the Winter Palace, which was quite an achievement considering that six feet-one represented at that time the average height in the imperial family, he must have stood six-vigorously smacks it against the girl's face.

Suddenly she awakes fully, grabs her partner in a more or less conventional dance hold, the crowd lets out a blast of vocal enthusiasm, claps, stamps, jumps to its feet, the cymbals and sax start a tumultuous beat, and the couple dances quite briskly along.

A COUPLE at the end of the arena gets the attention now. The man has been sleeping on the girl's shoulder, his head, because of his greater height, slung well down her back. The trainer has used cold towels, and now the girl is slapping him. He is still asleep, although supporting himself, and in his somnambulist state is resisting the attempt to awaken him. The girl keeps to the end of the chain as he swings his legs, then steps in the aisle, and whistles the towel across his face, setting him to flailing again. Several such encounters, and he awakens enough to shuffle along after her at the end of his chain. Like a bear being led by a child.

More and more spectators arrive as the evening advances, for the night show is the big event. That is why the walkers are chained together. They are doing a "tread-mill," keeping on the floor for three and one-half hours, before they get their 15 minutes of sleep. The men will sleep on cots in the arena, so the spectators get a little more for their money through seeing first breaks in the parade. The sleep-walkers do a 90-minute stretch on the floor, then get 15 minutes rest; the floor period started with 40 men, then steps in the aisle, and whistles the towel across his face, setting him to flailing again. Several such encounters, and he awakens enough to shuffle along after her at the end of his chain. Like a bear being led by a child.

BUT the crowd is not thinking of the show's the thing. It beats a six-day bicycle race, lasts longer than a dog race, has it over Pyle's famous "Bunion Derby." Fun for everybody; now and again a babe in swaddling clothes pierces the smoke-laden atmosphere with a thin wail; mother and father chew popcorn, drink soda with their small offspring; grandmother has an awful time climbing the plank tiers, what with her rheumatism, and has to be helped up by an usher and obliging spectator.

Most of the earlier crowd are either children and parents or folks past the adolescent age. The young folks are still at the meter; as the theater shows are over, they arrive in new vigor to the cheering.

and applauding; the earlier arrivals, some of whom have been there since the cheaper afternoon show, are beginning to tire, to wait impatiently for the big midnight rest scene.

It does weary after a while; nobody falls, nobody passes out, a constant repetition of cold towels, the blaring of the orchestra, the yelling of the crowd, the singing of sleepy walkers. There is considerable visiting among the audience.

An official of the walkathon leads the way under the tiers of seats to backstages, where are the two rest rooms and the first aid room.

"We always have a house doctor in attendance, and several nurses," the official explains. "See, here is the first aid room, that girl dropped out earlier today, and she is being fixed up—feet rubbed, massaged, blisters looked after."

Blisters. Shades of the bunion Derby, so that is why they are all limping.

"And here is where the men sleep; the girls have cots in the room over there. They sleep with their feet up, so the blood goes to the head."

He doesn't explain why the blood should go to the head, but calls to a plump, peppy girl, still in her teens, who is leaning against the bandstand.

"The girl is one of the contestants, she dropped out after 2400 hours. How do you feel?" he asks her.

"Oh, fine, I'm all rested up now. Gee, I gained 22 pounds out there. Guess I'll have to start dieting now."

FLOOR offerings. It is explained, are the contributions made by the spectators. They all have favorites, and if the favorite drops out, loss money into the arena as consolation offering.

"I guess I made as much as I would at anything," says the girl. "And it was pretty much fun; we all got interested in each other; and almost all those who dropped out are sticking around for the end, hoping for those who are left."

It is nearing midnight, the limit that the walkers have set for themselves. The walkers are weakening, more and more are dropping out.

often is the cold towel required; some of the audience leave, worn out by the heat and tedium, and in the arena. The walkers pass them, touch them longingly; a girl forcibly restrains her partner from flopping down on one. Probably more by-play, but it draws applause. Then a loud gong announces time.

The girls, previously unchained, fall into the arms of attendants and are carried out to the rest room. The men fall upon the cots, better skelter, and are grunting around so their feet are raised, by the attendants. Several nurses work on faces, at tendants rub feet. The lights are dimmed, and everybody is asked, dutifully, to be quiet.

THE 15 minutes pass quickly; the termination is made known by a nerve-racking siren, the clamor of the orchestra, joined by the shouts of the audience. The sleepers are undisturbed, however, and are caught by the scruff of the neck, swung to sitting posture, shook, stood on their feet, swathed with cold towels. They fall back on the cots at once if let go.

Brawny attendants come running out with the girl contestants in their arms, stand them on their feet, shake them. Others take the men, lift them with head down, shake them in that position—"To send the blood to their heads."

One by one the sleepers revive, stand unsupported, are chained together, stagger around the arena, eyes still closed with most of them. The orchestra plays, but none attempts to move rapidly, none is able more than to stagger, girl dragging partner on the chain. Nobody has dropped out, and the walkathon marathon is on again for another round.

"The winner will get a prize of $1500," says the guide. "First prize was originally $1000, but business has been so good it was raised—wouldn't be surprised if it is raised again, if they keep going. And all of them are still in will get prize. Heave ho, this contest has drawn some crowd."

A Bad Cold
Many people use white paper napkins for handkerchiefs when they have a bad cold in the head. They are burned after using and there can be no spreading of germs should the laundress be a careless one.

Grass Stains
To remove grass stains from canvas shoes add a few drops of household ammonia to one teaspoon of peroxide and rub the stains with the mixture. Wash off with water afterward.

Tinted Sheets
If you like the new colored bed linen and have so much white you feel it an extravagance to buy new, take the oldest of these you have and dye them the shades you desire and that harmonize with your room.

A Dairy Touch
Don't forget the tiny bouquet of flowers for the bedroom of the week-end guest while you are out in the garden cutting for the rest of the house. It adds a little welcome touch to the room.

DEMOCRATS FAVOR
WITHOUT PLEDGING PARTY TO REPEAL

Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, Head of Resolutions Committee, Outlines Policy—"Real Issue Economic."

FOR TARIFF SLASH, SLOW INFLATION

Roosevelt Forces Likely to Seek to Revoke Two-Thirds Rule—Tammany, in Key Position, Keeps Silent.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 23.—Gilbert M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, the Roosevelt chairman of the Democratic national convention's resolutions committee, declared today for a party platform emphasizing economic issues rather than prohibition.

Hitchcock voiced the views of other spokesmen of Gov. Roosevelt of New York as the Democratic platform making committee met for the first time. He advocated a slash in the tariff and a policy of measured inflation.

"We will have to meet the prohibition issue," said Hitchcock. "Because of what the Republicans did, but I do not consider it a party issue. Personally I voted against the eighteenth amendment as a member of the Senate but I am not what would be called a realist."

Submission of Repeal.
"I imagine the platform will provide a direct statement on prohibition, probably calling for the submission of a repeal amendment. But I do not think all members of the party should be bound or pledged to the policy of repeal."

"We have a real issue with the Republicans on the economic crisis confronting the nation."
Hitchcock reminded the Republicans that they complained 12 years ago of Democratic inflation and that the subsequent deflation in Republican rule is the cause of our trouble today. Hitchcock continued: "Of course, we must have controlled inflation in controlled form—the very thing which is being attempted now and for which the Democrats were condemned for 12 years ago. Tariff back to where it was under the Underwood bill of 1913."

Reflects Roosevelt Attitude.
Hitchcock, former Democratic senator from Nebraska, was selected last night by the Roosevelt forces as chairman of the Resolutions Committee. He expressed his views today to newspaper men prior to opening the first session of the committee.

All the Roosevelt leaders here are emphasizing the economic issues and demanding that the party base its campaign on these rather than on prohibition.

The Resolutions Committee had a deliberative and argumentative session with the Roosevelt forces in full command. A subcommittee consisting of Senators Dill of Washington and Wheeler of Montana, and Urey Woodson of Kentucky was finally appointed to draft a program for the hearings to be started this afternoon.

Gov. Murray of Oklahoma was in his feet throughout the hearing session sharply questioning every move.

McAdoo Withholds Motion.
William G. McAdoo of California, head of the immediate appointment of a subcommittee of seven to draft a tentative platform, but at the request of Senators Wheeler and Hull of Tennessee, Roosevelt advocates withheld the motion until later.

Harold B. Foulkroad, the legislative representative of the bonus expeditionary force at Washington, interrupted the opening session to announce that he wanted a hearing on a plank providing for full payment of the bonus.

Postponement of Tammany's decision on whom the New York delegation will support until the delegation can gather in caucus on Monday spurred the Roosevelt forces to a peak of activity. James A. Farley, manager of the New York Governor's campaign, was beside the first few hours of a busy day for a talk with John F. Curry, Tammany leader, who had just arrived to take a position at the center of the pre-convention whirl.

The situation was much to Tammany's liking. As the big saw pile of convention voting was fit together, New York's 34 ballots made up the key piece. With
